

Revenue sharing vote to decide adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, seeking to wrap up its business and go home for the year, is voting on whether to override a presidential veto and whether to extend the federal revenue-sharing proggam.

The revenue-sharing package emerged Wednesday as the key that will determine whether Congress meets its weekend deadline for adjournment. President Ford said Wednesday he will sign or veto two different jobs bills only after Congress acts on the revenue-sharing bill that Ford is seeking.

The House today takes up Ford's veto on Wednesday of a $56.6-billion appropriation bill for the departments of Health, Education and Welfare and Labor. Ford said the bill was $4 billion more than he requested and was inflationary.

The two jobs bills awaiting presidential action are a $3.7-billion measure for public works construction and legislation extending 260,000 public service jobs in state and local governments through the coming fiscal year.

Because these bills will be killed by a pocket veto if Congress adjourns and Ford doesn't act 10 days after he received them, supporters of the measures want Ford to sign or veto them. If Ford vetoes them, Congress then could attempt an override before adjourning this weekend.

Ford said Wednesday he will make decisions on the two bills if Congress approves the revenue-sharing bill that comes before the House today. That measure would provide $25.5 billion in federal revenue-sharing funds to cities, states and counties through 1980.

House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill said Wednesday that Congress will stay in session beyond Friday if that is necessary to prevent a pocket veto.

The veto of the HEW-Labor bill was Ford's 59th in his 49 months in office. Of the 59, Congress has overridden 11.

An override attempt failed Wednesday when the Senate sustained Ford's veto of a bill authorizing $100 million for research to develop automobiles that would pollute less and burn less fuel. The House voted to override but the Senate failed to do so.

Congress also took these other actions Wednesday:

JOBLESS BENEFITS

The unemployment tax on employers would be doubled and jobless benefits would be extended to all state and local government workers, under a bill approved by the Senate. The measure now goes to a conference with the House, which has approved a bill that is similar but which also extends unemployment compensation to farm workers and many domestics.

The Senate bill also would make it impossibile for a person to draw both a retirement check and full unemployment benefits.

Assistant prosecutor resigns

BENTON — Steve Taylor, assistant prosecuting attorney of Scott County, has announced his resignation to the Scott County Court, effective today.

Taylor said he will remain in Sikeston and become associated with the law firm of Gilmore & Gilmore, devoting full time to private practice.

Taylor released a statement in which he said:

It is with much reluctance that I tender my resignation of commission as assistant prosecuting attorney today. For 45 months I have worked for the people of Scott County in this area, and it has been a rewarding experience.

"I can only compliment all of those with whom I have worked in the prosecuting attorney's office for their diligence and competence. I must praise every level of law enforcement with whom I have worked for their unending honesty and efforts to help us all.

"We are fortunate in Scott County and this area to have the police officers, highway patrol officers, sheriffs and deputies, departmental agents and court officers that we do have. The tireless work carried on by all these people reflects the interest and support given to them by our citizens. They have earned my highest respect."

Medicare fees boosted by 19 per cent today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The portion of hospital fees that 25 million Medicare beneficiaries have to pay out of their own pockets was boosted a record 19 per cent today by the Social Security Administration.

The hike, effective next Jan. 1, means that an elderly or disabled person entering a hospital in 1977 will be responsible for the first $124 of the initial bill, covering up to two months, compared with the present charge of $104.

Similar increases apply to the share of costs that must be borne by the patient for extended stays in a hospital or skilled nursing home.

Social Security Commisioner James B. Cardwell said the increase is necessary to keep pace with hospital costs, which have been shooting up at more than twice the overall cost of living.

Medicare covers all hospital charges for up to the first 60 days except for an amount which, in theory, represents the cost on the day of admission.

Under the federal formula designed to balance off inflation, the price of that first — and supposedly average — day goes up $20. In fact, however, the computations lag behind actual costs by about two years.

After the patient picks up the bill next year, Medicare will pay through the 60th day.

But then further increases apply which, for some patients, could prove even more dear. They will have to pay $31 daily out of their own pockets for the 61st through the 90th day, up from the present $26 daily.

Post-hospital stays lasting more than 20 days in a skilled nursing home will require beneficiaries to pay $15.20 daily for the 21st through the 100th day, up from the present $13.

Medicare patients who must be hospitalized more than 90 consecutive days can draw upon their one-time-only lifetime reserve — an extra 60 days — but will have to pay $62 daily instead of the current $52.

The agency said the cost of Medicare hospital insurance is expected to rise from an overall $13.6 billion this year to $16.1 billion in 1977.

About 24.7 million persons are eligible for the benefits this year. They are expected to number [illegible] million next year.

Social Security said the average hospital stay now costs about $1,600 per patient.

Mingo to dedicate new visitor center Oct. 17

PUXICO— In a special ceremony, Nathaniel P. Reed, the Interior Department's assistant secretary for fish, wildlife and parks, will dedicate a unique new visitor center in a public ceremony at 2 p.m. Oct. 17 at Mingo National Wildlife Refuge.

The dedication ceremony will emphasize two important activities at the refuge: the environmental education and interpretive programs and the work of the Job Corps Civilian Conservation Center.

The 22,000-acre refuge area provides sanctuary for migratory waterfowl and other wildlife. The Job Corps Center teaches voational trades to disadvantaged youth through natural resource conseration construction and development projects.

Job Corpsmen built Mingo's visitor center. It sets on a bluff overlooking famous Mingo Swamp and houses educational exhibits explaining the wildlife, geology and ecology of Mingo National Wildlife Refuge.

Mingo Swamp, the last natural hardwood swamp left in Missouri, is a large part of the refuge. As the Mississippi River shifted its bed some 40 miles east more than 18,000 years ago, it left a pristine swamp that has since supported wildlife and man.

All the major cultures of the Mississippi Valley have lived there. Their artifacts, burial grounds and Indian mounds remain as evidence of their presence.

Tall tupelo trees and remnants of cypress forests rise from Mingo Swamp as monument to a part of our natural heritage exempted from timber and agricultural cultivation. Twelve state and national champion trees flourish on Mingo's acres.

Wildlife in abundnce benefit from the habitat preservation and restoration efforts of the Fish and Wildlife Service. Deer, beaver, wild turkeys, bald eagles, wood ducks and 60 different kinds of reptile and amphibians call Mingo National Wildlife Refuge home. More

Robbery loss set at $449

The Public Safety Department has revised its report on the amount of money taken Tuesday in an armed robbery at VIP Discount Gas Station No. 2, 415 W. Malone Ave.

The money was taken from an attendant by a man armed with a pistol and wearing a blue towel over his face.

Man sought for bank robberies

MARQUAND, Mo. (AP) — Not far from where Jesse James used to prowl, police have mounted a search for an elusive backwoodsman who they say is responsible for two or three bank robberies over the past eight months.

As darkness settled over the rugged Ozark foothill countryside Wednesday night, police on horseback and using bloodhounds continued their hunt for James A. Brooks, but the Highway Patrol's plane was grounded because of gathering gray skies.

"He's a pretty good woodsman," said Capt. Wayne Brooks, commander of the patrol's Poplar Bluff headquarters. "The area is so densely wooded up there, you just can hardly observe anything from the air at all."

The FBI and Highway Patrol have been looking for the 29-year-old Brooks since last February, when they charged him with the $8,000 robbery of the Bank of Caledonia. He is also charged with the July 18 holdup of the Belgrade State Bank, in which $6,000 was taken.

The area in which the robberies have taken place is about 100 miles south of St. Louis.

The search for Brooks intensive after Tuesday's robbery of the Bank of Marquand in which $10,000 was taken by a man dressed in a hunter's camouflage outfit. Police later identified him as Brooks, but he has not been formally charged with that crime.

"We feel it's the same man," said Leon Dobbs, assistant agent in charge of the FBI's St. Louis office. "He seems to be more or less like a Robin Hood."

Those who went to high school with Brooks in Caledonia say he is an avid outdoorsman, familiar with every tree of the Clark National Forest which spreads out over southeast Missouri.

"We're giving it the full court press," Dobbs said. "We've got some pretty good leads on the guy's activities for the last few days. We found a lean-to in the woods a few miles from Marquand, and have found witnesses putting him in the woods as of a couple three days ago."

He said police believe Brooks goes back to live in the woods after each holdup, and that he is getting assistance "from a few close friends."

"It's a close-knit area. He's a local character, but there are no haboring warrants out yet," Dobbs said.

There have been no injuries

Clubb man killed, wife seriously hurt

SILVA — A Clubb man was killed and his wife seriously injured Wednesday when their car and a tractor-trailer truck collided two miles east of town on Highway 34.

The highway patrol reported the death was the 87th on Southeast Missouri roads this year, compared to 91 at the same time last year.

Jacob Henson, 84, was pronounced dead at the scene and Mary Frances Henson, 65, of Clubb was seriously injured in the 11:15 a.m. accident.

According to William Lee Gaines, 44, driver of a westbound tractor-trailer, Henson's eastbound car was on the wrong side of the road. Gaines said Henson swerved to the left, then pulled back into the right lane and struck his tractor-trailer rig head on.

Henson's body was taken to Gish-Bowles-Coter Funeral Home in Piedmont. Mrs. Henson was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

IMMUNIZATION ACTION MONTH

The real wealth of any nation is its people, and this generation's most important work is keeping today's crop of children healthy, educating them and giving them a sense of integrity and respect for the nation's past, as well as hope for its future. Modern parents have unprecedented Opportunities to guard the health of their children.

The month of October was first designated in 1973 as Immunization Action Month -- a time to remind everyone responsible for the care of young children of their opportunity and their obligation to guard those youngsters against many diseases, now totally preventable, that were the scourges of mankind for millenniums. Under the direction of the U.S. Center for Disease Control, the Immunization Action Month (IAM) program this year is a nation-wide campaign to raise the immunization levels of millions of preschool children. The American Medical Association, joined by the National Medical Association, the American Academy of Family Physicians, the American Osteopathic Association, and the American Academy of Pediatrics which will be coordinating IAM, are lending their support to the effort. The goal is to immunize at least 90 per cent of an estimated five million susceptable children between the ages of one and four against polio, measles, rubella, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough by the time they enter the first grade. Physicians will be encouraged to urge parents, if available records do not indicate it, to determine if their children have been immunized against these diseases and, if not, to take immediate action.

Last year, following the first IAM program, there was up to a 20 per cent increase in vaccines used to prevent measles, rubella and polio during the two months of October and November. During the month of October, 1976, see to it that your children are protected. It is a little something you can do for America's future.

THE CROATIAN CAPER

The hijacking of a TWA jetliner by Croatian nationalists ought to focus our attention, however briefly, on the explosive situation that is Tito's Yugoslavia today.

Craotia is an area of that country that belonged to the old Austro-Hungarian empire before World War I. The Croats detest the dominant Serbs in Yugoslavia and vice versa. During World War II, an "independent" Croatia was established as a German puppet state and perhaps 100,000 Serbs were massacred. The Serbs retaliated in kind against Croats living in their areas. It is no wonder that permanent bad blood has developed.

Croatian separatists have been responsible for many acts of terrorism, including assassinations of Yugoslav diplomats. They are passionately devoted to their cause. Their need is to enlist the support of "world opinion." So, mistakenly, they hijack an airplane to get attention.

The problem may become much more than that when the now ailing 84-year old Tito departs the Yugoslav scene. His strong man rule has held together the multinational Yugoslav state up to now, but there are many who fear the worse when he goes. If Hungary and Yugoslavia are a precedent, the Soviets will rush in with tank guns and mobile rockets blazing when Tito dies, to support the faction that will promise allegiance to the Kremlin. And pleas for Craotian independence will be silenced forever.

Before discarding the dramatic effort of the Croatians to attract world attention as too insignificant to worry about, we should not forget that it was an assassination at Sarajevo that sparked World War I. The Croatian caper should remind us that the Balkan cauldron still simmers.

MORE THAN JUST ANOTHER PRETTY FACE. On display at Goldblatt's in Chicago recently was what at first glance appeared to be a live model but in actuality was a fiberglas manikin whose facial expressions, including, eye, lip and chin movements came from a projected focused on her from a few feet away. The voice came from a tape synchronized with the film. Duane Machtig, Chicago film producer and the doll's creator, says that the most difficult thing is molding a manikin's face to match the face and voice of the model that he will use for the film. The mold is made from a special plastic, and the heads are removable. The Goldblatt's manikin was the first to be used to sell a product (an 18 hour Playtex all-in-one), but other Machtig manikins have been in use for about a year. For example, a Gen. George Patton manikin is on exhibit in New York and Hess's department store in Allentown, Pa. has a manikin in a bicentennial display. They don't come cheaply either. They rent for $3,600 weekly, can be leased for $309.99 a month for 24 months (with an option to buy after 26 months), or can be purchased for $6,000.

And automation hits the corral. Richard Glaser of Roseville, Calif. has invented a Mechanical Animated Cow that he believes is better than the real thing even though it doesn't give milk or provide steaks. His reasons are based on the cow's performance in training horses to work around cattle. Being powered by batteries and driven like a tractor the cow can move faster in all directions than real cows, is less expensive to feed and doesn't tire after 30 days of being chased around by a horse. It just keeps "moo-vin' on." Cost-$3,395.

LEARNING SOMETHING FROM TEACHER STRIKES

It has become a regular rite of autumn—the teacher strike.

Across the country, from Manchester, N.H., to Buffalo, N.Y., to Marion, Ill., school systems faced either actual strikes or threatened strikes as students prepared to return to classes. Worst afflicted was Pennsylvania, where some 20 separate strikes involved 4,500 teachers and affected more than 85,000 children.

Planned strikes in other cities, as in Boston, Philadelphia and Tacoma, Wash., were averted at the 11th hour. Eventually all the strikes will be settled and teachers can get down to the business of teaching and their pupils to the business of learning—until next time.

No uninformed outsider is qualified to pass judgment on the merits of any of these disputes, but the fact that the teacher strike has become a routine phenomenon is a matter of concern to all Americans, whether or not they have school-age children.

There is no question but that teaching is one of the most demanding of jobs. We note, however, that in the past few years teachers in both public and private schools have won impressive financial gains commensurate with their vital role in society. No longer is the teacher one of the lowest figures on the economic totem pole.

Unfortunately, there is accumulating evidence that higher teacher pay has not been accompanied by higher academic achievement among the nation's youth.

They may not realize it, but the striking teachers are still teaching, even though they may be holding a picket sign outside a school building instead of a textbook in a classroom. They are giving their students an impressive lesson in the power of organization, and of the right of people to get together to bargain collectively with their employer and to withhold their services if necessary.

We wonder how many teachers will take the time later to give their students an equally as impressive lesson in the responsibilities that are the other side of that right.

They might point out, for example, that there is always an interested third party to any labor dispute—the public—and that it is the public that always ultimately foots the bill for the settlement. In the case of a factory strike, it is the customers for the product that is manufactured. In the case of a school or other municipal services strike, it is the taxpayers.

That being true, the public is fully justified in expecting greater value received for the greater financial outlay it is called upon to make.

Teachers might also discuss the underlying reason for most strikes today, which is the natural desire of people to keep up with inflation and the rising cost of living. They might usefully explore with their students to what degree this inflation is the result of too many Americans demanding too many benefits from government without being willing to pay for them—again, the imbalance between rights and responsibilities.

The teachers are teaching, but far too often it is the wrong lesson.

WASHINGTON — An now one of the brashest and biggest national federal employes' unions bluntly, and with considerable collective chest thumping, is threatening literally to slow down the U.S. government.

This would be a mass -- and massive -- felony. Punishable by a year and a day in prison. But in the past week, some 2,000 delegates to the American Federation of Government Employes national convention, under militantly new leadership, have told the public that it's about time we, the people, learned how hard the federal civil service works and how much more money the 2,900,000 federal employes must get in their upcoming raise.

And to prove to the public how really indispensable these suffering employes are, they will protest failure to get the full amount they're seeking -- by working "by-the-rule," or by the book or by ancient job descriptions, classifications and the small print evolving from the gaslight era.

They warned that this would slow mailing of Social Security checks to the aged; benefit payments to the ex-servicemen and women and others dependent on the Veterans Administration; tie up or snarl air traffic; get poultry and meat inspection down to a crawl and stall military shipments and care of missiles.

Most vital of all would be the disruption of the "delivery" of health services.

Presumably at the Pentagon, Secretary Don Rumsfeld would have to use smoke signals instead of the computertized communications systems. No gag, this.

Actually the AFGE leaders, tumultuously assembled this past week, said that "the protest action will be tempered in those areas where both the lives, health or safety of American citizens would be endangered."

But, added the federal union's high command, which speaks for some 600,000 civil service employes, all this is threatened by a reduction in government employes and the failure of President Ford to grant them higher wages. Actually the slashing of the AFGE wage hike demands down to a 4.83 per cent increase was mandated by the Congress and not Mr. Ford.

Further, the Civil Service Commission reports that an additional 19,000 federal employes were hired in July – the most recent figure. A good many of the new personnel were taken aboard by the Departmsnts of Interior, HEW, Agriculture and Defense. Only the Postal Service work force was trimmed.

And what the big union further demands is the retention of a 1 per cent "kicker" bonus, an annual topping by that amount of each yearly Cost of Living Allowance for retirees. This practice has just been killed by the Congress.

Today federal pensions take $17 billion annually out of the U.S. Treasury and by 1985 the cost may be almost $45 billion a year.

But, says the union, failure to get what it wants "jeopardizes the delivery of those services" -- meaning lives, health or safety of American citizens. The words are theirs.

For the moment there's no need to address oneself to the issues here. Point is there is very little which can be negotiated under the Federal Civil Service law. The right to strike the federal government, or slow it down, or to go to impasse fact-finding is non-existent. The Congress makes the broad decisions on wages and fringes.

Thus, the "work-to-rule," or by the book, is a slowdown maneuver towards the actual striking of the federal government. Such as in France.

Some of the AFGE leaders appear to believe they are on the bricks in a hospital strike. Those supposedly gentle civil servants turned tiger, for example, when they got out of their car pools at the U.S. Department of Labor.

This citadel of workers' rights is staffed by members of the AFGE's turbulent Lodge 12. They've raised hell in the corridors. They've roared at "the bosses." They've seized the office of an Assistant Secretary of Labor. They've "sat-in."

They gave ex-Labor Secretary Pete Brennan a hard time. And more recently they've badly shaken up the incumbent Bill Usery with those internal demonstrations and threates. It's all so tough he has had to call in a specil three-man mediation committee headed by the dean of mediators and meditators, Dave Cole of Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower days.

The Lodge 12 brothers and sisters want the department all tied up for themselves, it's reported. They want promotions and other upward an sideways mobility and improvements to go to "in-house" staffers. This freezes out AFGE members in other departments.

It's all very embarrassing for Bill Usery – as it was when the Lodge members threatened to picket a Labor Department celebration recently at the Kennedy Center.

Most of this has been behind the scenes. The sovereign government of the U.S. is being roared at, threatened and mocked by some of its own employes. Who gave them the right? Why is no one roaring back? The people have the right to know.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Taxpayers' Money Put to Flight

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The Lockheed military-industrial empire is now so heavily subsidized by the taxpayers that the company allegedly has siphoned government money into its commercial projects.

Federal investigators have accused Lockheed of channeling more than $45 million of the taxpayers' money into such commercial developments as the L-011 jetliner.

This was accomplished through a complex bookkeeping maneuver. In its simplest form, the technique was to commingle costs from nongovernment work with costs from government contracts, explain the investigators.

It is alleged that Lockheed charged to defense contracts some costs that actually went into building the civilian jetliners. Thus the unwitting taxpayer wound up helping finance the company's commercial endeavors.

It is small wonder that Lockheed had trouble separating its government and commercial bookkeeping, for the industrial colossus did a whopping $2.2 billion in government business last year. At the pleading of President Ford, Congress also granted $200 million in federal loan guarantees to keep the company from going bankrupt.

Its books, therefore, are supposed to be open to government auditors. But as we reported in July, the Defense Contract Audit Agency was barred from inspecting Lockheed's books. The company preferred to deal with the more lenient Renegotiation Board.

The audit agency, nevertheless, has been investigating Lockheed's vast California aerospace facilities, Seattle shipyards and Marietta, Ga., complex. The Renegotiation Board, for its part, assigned a special three-man committee to procure other financial data.

The General Accounting Office, thereafter, asked to see Renegotiation Board's financial findings on Lockheed. This information was submitted, together with a highly confidential covering letter, by Chairman Richard Holmquist.

Although Holmquist's letter doesn't specify the precise amount that Lockheed took from Peter to pay Paul, it is estimated that well over $45 million was involved in the juggling operation in 1972 alone.

President Ford, meanwhile, has held down the Renegotiation Board's staff to less than 200. This has left too few watchdogs to keep an eye on the skulduggery of the industrial giants. While the President pinches pennies, his industrial pals apparently are stealing millions.

Footnote: Lockheed has denied knowledge of any diversion of funds from government to commercial purposes. The Defense Contract Audit Agency and the Renegotiation Board declined comment. Meanwhile, Rep. Josph Minish, D.-N.J., is seeking to give the audit agency a larger role in checking the books of government contractors. His legislation has been sidetracked, however, by friends of the industrialists.

HARTKE HOWLS: The normally amiable Sen. Vance Hartke, D.-Ind., howled with indignation over our report that his daughter Sandra had found employment with a union and and insurance company that benefited from the senator's votes.

Her employers, we also reported, were remarkably tolerant. They allowed her to work only when she felt like it, and sometimes mailed her paychecks to her home.

Hartke responded that his opponents, "by damn," had better "leave my children out of it." It wasn't easy for Sandra, he said, "being Sen. Vance Hartke's daughter."

It wasn't Sandra but the senator whose conduct we were questioning. He voted down the line for legislation endorsed by the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks at the same time that his daughter was on the union payroll.

The union let her off, with pay, to campaign for her father six years ago. Confidential union records show that she missed work 110 days from January through November, 1970.

She claimed 52 days sick leave, and our sources confirm she had some legitimate medical problems. But she also took off an additional 58 days during the height of the campaign from June through November. Sandra has acknowledged that she spent some of this time in Indiana helping to re-elect her father. Under union rules, she was entitled to only 17 days sick time and 10 days vacation time. Yet the union paid her for the entire 110 days. Not until after the November election did the union threaten to dock her pay.

It is also clear from the confidential records that the union vigorously supported Hartke in the campaign. As one memo puts it, "Winning this election will depend largely on our ability to convince an informed electorate that Vance Hartke should be returned to the Senate."

In 1971, Sandra found a better job with the Travelers Insurance Company. But again, she was permitted to spend most of her time attending to personal interests. Hartke also happens to be a power on the Senate Commerce Committee which has jurisdiction over insurance matters.

Footnote: In his attack on us, the senator stated that our story "was first used in the 1970 ... campaign." The confidential memos in our possession hadn't been made public previously. In fact, Sandra didn't even go to work for Travelers until the year after the 1970 campaign.

Quick takes

Mother's advice to the contrary, 100 strokes of the hairbrush each night may do your crowning glory more harm than good. A national magazine says that vigorous massage, rough toweling and vigorous brushing or combing of hair may actually accelerate its loss. Since neither the scalp nor hair roots need it, better to shampoo and dry gently.

Can relaxation exercises help control blood pressure? Citing a recent medical study, the October Family Circle reports on 14 young hypertensive men at the University of California and V.A. Hospital, San Diego. The men were told to find comfortable chairs in quiet locations, loosen clothing, sit upright, relax muscles and silently count their breaths for 10 or 15 minutes, twice daily. After six months, the men had significantly lower mean pressures than a comparable group of non-exercisers.

A personal tragedy elicits a warning

Dear Readers: Please forgive this personal reference but I must share with you, my millions of friends, what is on my mind and in my heart.

A few weeks ago, our family gathered in Omaha to bury one of the dearest, most gentle people I have ever known. He was David Brodkey, married for 43 years to our eldest sister, Helen.

Dave was a delight. We adored him. He was meticulous about detail, the perfect choice to take charge of any family project. Dependable. Industrious. Thorough. "Integrity" was his middle name.

Dave cherished Helen, and well he might. She was a devoted wife, the beauty of the family, a talented pianist, a superb cook, and a leader in community affairs.

But Dave, The Perfectionist, the man who did everything right, did ONE thing wrong. He smoked at least two packs of cigarets every day for 30 years. This senseless addiction deprived him of the joy of seeing his grandchildren marry. And it will deny those who loved him of the pleasure of his beautiful presence.

So often I have heard smokers say, "Well, you have to die d-from something." True. But please, friends, if you can help it, die from something else -- and don't rush the event. Lung cancer is a horrible way to go. While non-smokers, too, die from lung cancer, the evidence is irrefutable -- cigaret smoking does cause lung cancer. The more we study it, the more certain we become. Smokers are the leading candidates for this dreaded disease -- and heart trouble and emphysema as well.

One out of every four Americans alive today will have some form of cander during his lifetime. One out of six people who get cancer will die from it -- unless, of course, we learn more about how to prevent this scourge and how to cure it.

The economic cost of cancer in our country is $10 billion a year, to say nothing of the agnoy and suffering. The life of every person who reads this column has been touched in some way by cancer. It is the second biggest killer in the United States.

Almost the last words Dave uttered to his wife were these: "I should have listened to you years ago when you begged me to stop smoking." But like so many others, Dave believed cancer happens to other people.

And now, all you wives who are nagging your husbands, and all you husbands who are pleading with your wives to throw away those filthy killers -- and all you young people who are turning your healthy pink lungs into tar pits at 65 cents a pack, for god's sake, for the sake of those who love you, STOP SMOKING TODAY. Do it for yourself. Do it for the people who care about you. And if you want to do something for me today please send a contribution -- even a single dollar bill will help. The address: David Brodkey Cancer Fund, Box 4141, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Your contributions will be spent on medical research and educational material to combat the glamorous image of smoking promoted by the tobacco industry.

We CAN conquer cancer in our lifetime if enough people will join hand in this effort. Thank you so much and God bless. -- Ann Landers

Female resistance to heart disease still good despite pressures of work

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The social stress of a daily job, long thought to be responsible for the susceptibility of men to heart disease, has not had the same effect on women, says an expert in coronary medicine.

Dr. William Hazzard, a researcher at the University of Washington, told a symposium of the American Heart Association Wednesday that although more and more women are facing the pressures of the working world, they still have a "remarkable resistance to coronary disease" and now outlive men longer than ever.

The new evidence has left researchers baffled about female resistance to coronary disease.

Hazzard said another popular theory, that the female hormone estrogen helped combat heart disease, has recently been discounted.

"For a while, we were even giving estrogen to men in hopes of preventing a second heart attack. It didn't work," he said.

Aside from old age, being male is the biggest contributing factor to heart disease in Western societies, Hazzard said.

Men are four times as likely as women to suffer heart disease in middle age as women, he said. The longevity gap between the sexes — an American woman's average life span is now 76, compared with 68 for men — is ever-widening.

It had been widely believed among scientists that males in industrialized nations were subjected to more socioeconomic stress than women were, and were therefore more prone to heart ailments.

Hazzard said scientists believed that one solution might be "to ease some of the sociological factors and put less emphasis on all the machismo jazz."

But many women have now entered the anxiety-ridden world of business, Hazzard said, and there is no evidence they are any more susceptible to heart disease than they ever were.

In fact, he added, when heart disease rates began to decline in the last few years, the decline among women was much more dramatic than among men.

Blanton says elections commission director resigns over budget issues

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Elections Commission Chairman David Blanton says differences over a budget led to Anne E. Forry's decision to resign as commission executive director.

Ms. Forry'f resignation is effective today, just six months after taking the job.

She said she based her decision on "administrative questions and issues," but would not say specifically what led to the resignation.

Ms. Forry said a decision she objected to was made at a closed meeting of the commission Friday and Saturday, and that she resigned as a result of that decision. Blanton said the closed session dealt with "internal operations and budgetary matters."

"I'm resigning because eight months ago when I first interviewed for this job I told the commission that the job of the executive director was to carry out the duties of the commission, and that if the commission made a decision I could not carry out, I would resign. Last Saturday they made a decision that I wouldn't carry out and I had to resign," she said.

The Washington University law school graduate would not talk about the commission's decision, saying it was not as important as her decision to resign.

"If at any time I think the public should know, I'll talk about it," she said.

The resignation is the second of an executive director since the commission began its operations in 1975. Al Kemp Jr., the commission's first choice for the post, resigned last March saying the legislature had not adequately financed the commission, which enforces the state's Campaign Finance and Disclosure law.

He is now the Republican candidate for state treasruer.

The commission's legal counsel, Jack Pletz, was appointed acting executive director until a permanent successor to Ms. Forry could be selected.

Pay increase to be given to employes

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated 2.6 million federal civilian and military employes will be getting a pay increase beginning Friday that averages 4.83 per cent and is worth about $2.5 billion.

But labor spokesmen say it's not enough and it will cost votes for President Ford, who approved the pay hike Wednesday.

Ford ignored appeals for a greater increase that was recommeded by his government pay advisers.

The AFL-CIO's public employe department predicted that Ford's action will "dangerously accelerate the great employe unrest" among federal workers at all levels. Department president Howard McClennan said the decision "further demonstrates the Ford administration's callous disregard for federal service employes."

Accident brings 3-state traffic delay

CAIRO, Ill. — A truck loaded with frozen waffles caused a massive tie-up in tri-state traffic Wednesday morning when it apparently hit the guardrails of the Ohio River bridge and overturned.

The driver of the truck is listed in satisfactory condition by the Western Baptist Hospital at Paducah, Ky., where he was taken by ambulance, with what police termed serious injuries.

The accident happened at about 3 a.m. Billy Joe Carlton, 34, of rural Trenton, Tenn. was driving the semi toward Cairo and apparently hit the bridge guardrails at a curve near the Kentucky approach.

Kentucky Department of Transportation officials said about 100 to 150 feet of the guardrail and some of the curbing was damaged.

When the truck turned over, it completely blocked traffic on the bridge, but by about 9:30 workers at the scene had managed to move the truck over enough to allow one-way traffice.

At one point, traffic was backed all the way to Wickliffe, Ky., on Highway 60-51 from the bridge, to the south edge of Cairo in Illinois and the northbound lane of traffic on the Mississippi River bridge from Missouri to Cairo was backed as far as one could see. However, the Missouri Highway Patrol said there was no traffic backup on the Missouri side of the river.

Where possible, drivers were detoured from Cairo north on 37 to 169 near Karnak and then to 45 and south on 45 to I-24 and across the bridge to highway 60 west of Paducah, Ky. Another alternate route for southbound Illinois drivers was across the Mississippi River bridge into Missouri then to State Route 77 south from Wyatt, Mo., to State Route 80 to a ferry crossing at Columbus, Ky.

Scores of Kentucky residents who work at Cairo were either delayed or prevented from getting to work because of the tieup, as were Illinois residents who work in Kentucky.

Illinois State Police were on the scene at the traffic lights on the Cairo side of the bridge directing traffic and Kentucky state troopers were directing traffic from the Wickliffe side.

Shuford is selected for post in electric rate reform group

CHAFFEE — W. L. Shuford of Chaffee has been selected as Scott County finance chairman for the Citizens For Reformed Electric Rates.

"We know we cannot outspend the huge power companies and banks supporting them," Shuford said, "but we can get enough money together to buy some radio time to urge people of Scott County to vote 'yes' on Proposition One (in the Nov. 2 general election)."

Shuford said he is taking an active part in order to do his part to stop inflation. He believes it is unfair for the Missouri Public Service Commission to allow power companies to add a charge to current electric bills for something they may never live to use.

"The only opposition to Proposition One is coming from the big bankers and big power companies who will be the ones to profit most from this billion-dollar bonanza," Shuford said. "We need to get a yes vote on Proposition One and I know we can do it."

SW Bell may face reduced revenues

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. operations in Missouri "would be hamstrung," if the state Public Service Commission agreed to its staff recommendation of reduced revenues in a pending rate case, according to Ray Shockley, the firm's vice president.

The St. Louis-based utility has asked the PSC for $71.7 million increase in gross annual revenues, but the commission staff has advised that only $15 million be provided the firm.

During questioning by company attorney Jack Lorenz, Shockley said the recommendations were not realistic.

"Our company's labor costs alone have risen some $32 million in the period 1975-1976, the period since our last rate case," Shockley said. "The staff's recommended rate relief woulnd't cover those costs and certainly woulnd't enable the company to recover other higher operating costs driven up by inflation."

Shockley, who is responsible for Bell's Missouri operations, said the company requires a return of about 9.5 per cent on its Missouri investment to protect its credit rating and continue to attract investors.

"Presently, our return is at the unacceptable level of 6.65 per cent on a test-period adjusted basis," he said. The staff's recommendation calls for the company to receive a rate of return in the range of 8 per cent.

The vice president's testimony came during the third day of formal hearings on Bell's rate increase request.

If approved, the increase would raise the monthly rates of the average residential or business customer by about 15 per cent.

The company also proposes a 20-cent charge on direntory assistance calls if a customer makes more than three calls per month to directory assistance within his home area code.

The firm is also asking for an increase in installation charges raising the fee for a typical residential installation from $24 to $44,and for a typical business from $45 to $66.

The utility serves 1.3 million customers throughout Missouri.

Shockley told the commission that Southwestern has been trying to maintain service while reducing operating costs through labor-saving, technological changes.

The refuge attracts people, too. Canoeists dip their paddles in its many miles of waterways. Fishermen angle for crappie and bass. Photographers record Mingo's different faces through the seasons, and children delight in discovering Jack-in-the-pulpit plants along a nature trail.

The new visitor center will further serve people. The refuge staff has designed the center's exhibits to reflect the exotic features of Mingo Swamp's interior -- plants and animals seldom found in other parts of Missouri. Deaton Museum Studios of Newton, Iowa, a firm which has done extensive work for the Smithsonian Institute and the National Park Service, has prepared many of the displays, including a three-dimensional diorama of Mingo Swamp.

Mingo National Wildlife Refuge lies within easy driving distance of both St. Louis and Memphis, from Interstate 55. The airport at Cape Girardeau is a 45-minute drive east of the refuge.

More than 500 visitors are expected to attend the dedication ceremony. Hundreds more will be out on refuge roads and trails sampling autumn amidst the splendor of Mingo's hardwood forests.

won final congressional action when the House approved a three-year, $4.8-billion extension of programs to help regions with high unemployment.

CIVIL RIGHTS

The Senate approved and sent to the House a bill that supporters say will help citizens enforce their civil rights. The measure would permit courts to order losing defendants to pay attorneys fees to private citizens who bring successful suits to enforce their civil rights. The measure also says courts may award attorney's fees to taxpayers who prevail in civil suits brought against them by the Internal Revenue Service.

SWAMPS AND DUNES

Final congressional action was given to a 3,662-acre expansion of the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore along Lake Michigan and to plans to create the Congaree Swamp National Monument in South Carolina. Both bills now go to President Ford.

Experts say Missouri needs better radiation safeguards

By LAURA PATRICK
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Several radiation experts would like to replace federal monitoring of Missouri's nuclear installations with a state system, which they say would provide closer checks on both routine problems and unexpected emergencies.

Portions of the proposed Missouri Radiation Protection Act, under study by a select House committee, would help close gaps caused by federal regulation of nuclear materials, they say.

James L. Wilson, director of the state Department of Natural Resources, said state controls should supplant federal regulation of transportation, manufacture and storage of radioactive materials within Missouri.

Users and manufacturers of radioactive materials within the state presently are licensed and monitored by the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The proposed state act would allow the state to enter "agreement status" with the federal commission and as a result, assume almost 80 per cent of the federal licensing and inspection program in Missouri.

Wilson emphasized the importance of the state licensing portions of the proposed act because "it returns to the state a certain serious and important authority now held by the federal government."

Ken Karch, director of the state Division of Environmental Quality spoke of the need for greater training for emergency response to possible radiation hazards. Under present regulation, Karch said Missouri is "not prepared to respond to a radiological emergency."

The state's Atomic Energy Commission has adopted a radiation response plan for such emergencies and has filed it with the adjutant general's office. But Karch said the plan has only half the elements it needs to be effective.

Missouri has enough money and personnel to handle an emergency, Karch said, but only one-half of the persons involved in the plan have a clear understanding of their responsibilities. No one has a proscribed procedure to follow.

"We don't have clear cut responsibilities in each agency," Karch said.

Examples of what Missouri needs to make the plan work, Karch said, are:

—Up-to-date telephone numbers for rapid communication when a problem is detected;

—Pre-prepared press releases so the press immediately can notify the public of where the problem is located;

—Several persons to call and notify so that a "fail safe" system of communication will be in operation;

—Periodic testing of the plan to insure that it will work.

The state highway patrol cannot supervise decontamination efforts but is "properly trained and equipped to handle the preliminary problems," such as traffic and crowd control in a radiological emergency, patrol Trooper Herbert W. Watchinski said.

Patrol Major W. A. Dolen said it is "difficult to determine how much nuclear material is being transported" along state highways, but said he favors state control of routes used in the transportation of radioactive materials.

Charles Mayer, head of the nuclear transportation division of the Tri-State Motor Transit Co., Joplin, criticized proposals for route control. "Highway routing is burdensome and ineffectual," he said. "The problem is that present federal regulations don't discriminate as to who can transport radioactive material and who can't."

Mayer said his company favors tougher federal licensing regulations but is concerned about "uniformity" if states enact different types of regulations for carriers. Mayer's company transports nuclear material in several states.

Frank Colmer, a health physicist at Menorah Medical Center in St. Louis, said there is an "urgent need to upgrade the surveillance of radioactive equipment in hospitals, particularly those in outstate areas."

Ninety per cent of the radiation exposure to individuals comes from X-rays and radiological treatment, Colmer said.

Most persons who take X-rays in a physician's office are not qualified for the work, Colmer said. Over-exposure can be caused by using levels higher than necessary for a clear X-ray. "Re-takes" due to careless or improperly located first exposures also needlessly increase exposure to radiation, he said.

Colmer said all operators of X-ray equipment should be tested and certified by the state.

Larger urban hospitals make regular checks of their radioactive equipment, but smaller ones in rural areas often don't comply with federal standards, Colmer said.

"They just don't see the people of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission often enough to know what they're doing wrong," he said.

Thoughts
From The Living Bible

Now, in Mid-September, all the people assembled at the plaza in front of the Water Gate and requested Ezra, their religious leader, to read to them the law of God which he had given to Moses. So Ezra the priest brought out to them the scroll of Moses' laws. He stood on a wooden stand so that everyone could see him as he read. He read from early morning until noon. Everyone stood up as he opened the scroll. And all paid close attention.

Two FBI agents were rushing to the scene of a reported bank robbery on Wilshire Boulevard Monday morning when they saw Bailey's bike hanging out the back end of a taxicab, said Police Sgt. Ronald Bear.

Employes at Los Angeles Federal Savings and Loan had reported that their masked bandit escaped westbound pedaling a 10-speed bike and carrying $4,065 of their money.

Bailey, 27, of Los Angeles, hailed a cab not far from the bank and put his bike in the trunk, Bear said.

When they arrested him, the FBI agents also took as evidence a Halloween mask and a pellet gun, the sergeant added. He was booked by police for investigation of robbery.

Mark V to debut in '77

Lincoln-Mercury Division's new 1977 Mark V will debut Friday at Sikeston Motor Co., dealership president Clint Elledge said today.

"The all-new, prestigious Mark V combines the ultimate in elegance with added engineering advances to guarantee its dominant position in the American luxury-car market," Elledge said. "We expect to continue the record initiated by its predecessor, Mark IV, which in the 1976 model year outsold its major competitor by 5,200 units.

"New-car buyer research shows styling is the most important factor in the personal luxury-car market," Elledge said, "and the distinctive, yet classic styling of the Mark V should satisfy the demands of the more discriminating buyer attracted to this segment of the market."

Mark V's exterior styling results in a more sculptured appearance than the Mark IV. Trendsetting Mark styling features such as the traditional verticle grille, opera windows and Continental-style rear-deck lid are retained. New for 1977 are three louvers, located behind the front wheel openings, which not only heighten the car's singularity, but also reduce engine-compartment heat.

Elledge said the popular Designer Series is continued in 1977. Internationally known designers Bill Blass, Hubert de Givenchy, Emilio Pucci and Cartier again have selected color and trim combinations to reflect their individuality. In 1976, the Designer Series accounted for more than one-fourth of all Mark IV sales.

Interiors of the Mark V feature standard seats in a new pleated design of Ultravelour fabirc. Optional fabrics include the cashmere-like Majestic velour and a new woven-appearance Romano velour. Rich, handcrafted leather is available in all interior colors. The revised instrument-panel cluster features high-gloss walnut woodgrain applique and new lenses with a cut-crystal appearance. A new Cartier day-date clock has a higly accurate quartz crystal movement.

New options for Mark V include an Illuminated Entry System, a heated, outside left-hand mirror that is part of a defroster group, a CB (citizen 's band) radio with power antenna and new Turbine-Styled aluminum wheels.

Mark V is equipped with a standard 400-cubic-inch-displacement-2V engine that has been modified to improve driveability and performance. Both the 400-2V and the optional 460-CID-4V engine feature the company's improved second-generation DuraSpark electronic ignition.

Standard for 1977 are four-wheel disc brakes, Twin Comfort seats with six-way power for the driver, Automatic Temperature Control air conditioning with a driver-controlled fan, and an AM-FM radio with four speakers and power antenna.

"Our Mark V is a luxury car in every sense of the term," Elledge said. "When you consider the highly successful sales year Mark IV enjoyed in 1976, plus the impetus this exciting new Mark V will provide, you can understand my optimism over the 1977 sales prospects."

Atkinson joins Indian center

SPRINGFIELD — Bob Atkinson Jr., a former Sikeston resident, has been named director of the Southwest Missouri Indian Center, 325 E.. Grand.

Atkinson graduated from Sikeston High School, and is the son of Ruth Atkinson of 418 Greer St., Sikeston, and the late Bob Atkinson Sr.

Atkinson requests all Indian families in the southeast Missouri area to write him at the Southwest Missouri Indian Center if they are interested in furthering their education or developing a skill, as the center has funds available to assist Indians in these fields.

1977 Continental Mark V

Continental Mark V, the latest generation in a dynasty of custom- crafted luxury cars, succeeds the Mark IV in 1977. More angular and rakish than its predecessor, the Mark V retains the traditional Mark grille and Continental rear spare tire deck lid, but adds styling touches such as functional front fenders louvers. Although about the same size as the Mark IV, the Mark V will be nearly 400 pounds lighter. A 400-CID 2V engine will be standard with the 460-CID 4V engine optional everywhere except California. A new standard interior includes Twin-Comfort Lounge seats trimmed in a new soft velour fabric, a new instrument panel cluster with a high- gloss, woodgrain applique and a new Cartier day-date clock with quartz crystal accuracy.

1977 Cougar XR-7

The completely new 1977 Cougar XR-7 will feature bold styling and an efficient, comfortable interior. For the first time, the Cougar nameplate also will encompass an entire family of cars, including two-and four-door and station wagon models. All Cougars will feature the same bright, vertical-theme grille and dual rectangular headlamps. The XR-7 will be distinguished by its own wraparound taillights and a sculptured deck lid akin to that of the Mark V. A 302-CID 2V engine and automatic transmission will be standard on the Cougar XR-7.

The look of Cougar for '77

The seven models of Lincoln-Mercury Division's redesigned 1977 Cougar lineup will be publicly introduced Friday at Sikeston Motor Co., dealership president Clint Elledge said today.

"In 1977 -- for the first time -- the excitement and styling flair associated with Cougar in the past will be available in a full line of cars, from the sporty Cougar XR-7 to the family-sized, four-door base Cougar," Elledge said.

"The Cougar XR-7, which retains its own distinct styling touches, is highly responsive and fun to drive.

"The Cougar and Cougar Brougham two- and four-door models will offer first-class family transportation in a comfortable, six-person package.

"And, for the first time, the Cougar nameplate will be available on a station wagon incorporating some of the styling excitement and responsive handling that has made Cougar the most popular mid-sized car in Lincoln-Mercury history."

Elledge said all 1977 Cougars feature new exterior sheet-metal. The front is highlighted by a vertical "swing-away" grille and dueal rectangular headlights. Cougar and Cougar Brougham models have vertical taillamps with integral side markers. Cougar XR-7 is distinguished by such features as a sculptured rear-deck lid, louvered opera windows and wraparound taillamps.

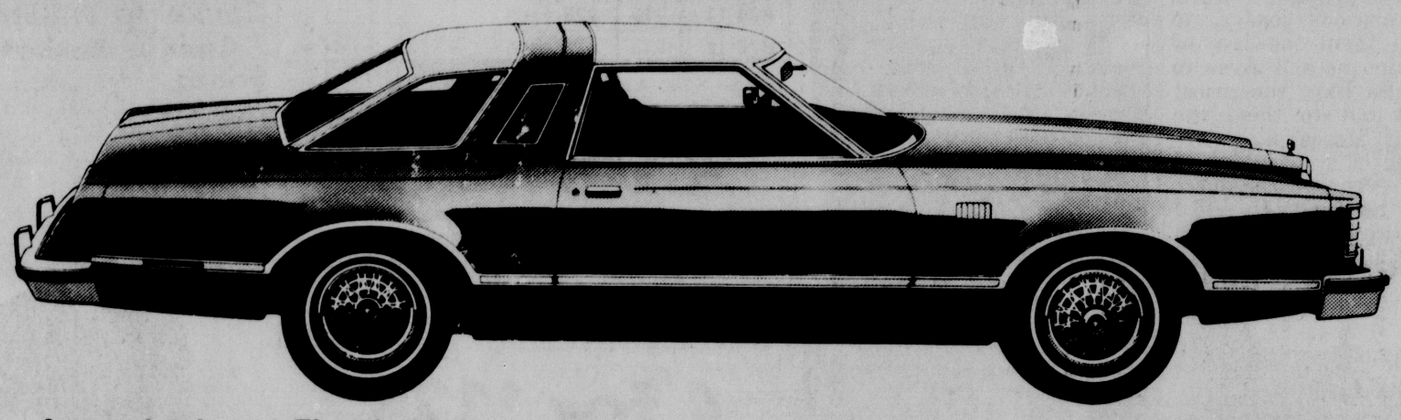

Interiors on all models include a new instrument-panel design and new door trim. Cougar XR-7 features a full-length door arm rest. Four new interior colors are available and cloth and vinyl seat trims have been revised. A decor option with special interior and exterior appointments is available in the XR-7 and Brougham models.

Handling characteristics of the XR-7 are improved with the refinement of ride components and the addition of a rear stabilizer bar and standard 15-inch wheels.

Standard in the XR-7 and all Cougar hardtops and sedans is the 302-cubic-inch-displacement engine which is smaller and lighter than the 351-CID engine standard a year ago. The bigger engine remains standard on station wagon models.

Dodge Monaco to be available in two sizes

Dodge's top-of-the-line nameplate is available in two size classes in 1977. Full-sized Royal Monacos are complemented by smaller, more efficient intermediate-sized Monacos.

The combination provides a selection of 15 models, all with the road handling, comfort and luxury options associated with the line's flagship.

Royal Monacos are available in two price levels – Royal Monaco and Royal Monaco Brougham – providing fully competitive, no-compromise full-sized cars. Royal Monaco Brougham continues to offer the standard luxury features top-of-the-line buyers expect.

'77 2 door Monaco

Both models retain a luxury front end appearance distinguished by hidden headlights and a handsomely detailed grille.

The classic design emphasizes that full six-passenger seating, a smooth quiet ride, generous luggage space, luxury options and the security and comfort of a big car are uncompromised in 1977.

The seven-model lineup includes a two-door hardtop and a four-door sedan at both price levels on a 121-inch wheelbase. All full-sized wagons have a 124-inch wheelbase. A two-seat station wagon is available at both levels. The Brougham series also includes a three-seat wagon.

Standard equipment for both Royal Monaco and Royal Monaco Brougham includes automatic transmission, power brakes, power steering, color-keyed carpeting, inside hood release, drip and upper door frame moldings, and lighter, quieter, glass-belted radial tiers. Steel-belted radials are standard for all wagons and available for all other models. Royal Monaco Brougham wagons have woodgrain body sides, heavy duty shock absorbers and air deflector, standard.

Intermediate-sized Monacos provide an excellent alternative for the more economy-minded driver accustomed to the comfort and features of full-sized cars.

They are distinguished by new vertically stacked, rectangular headlamps and a distinctive new grille with the Dodge name molded into it. The grille has a horizontal design with a vertical mid-bar separation. Its centerline has a matching body color tape applique.

Park and turn lamps are located in the bumpers and turn indicators on the top of the fenders are optional. Sedan tail lights have a tricolor design consisting of a red stoplight-tail lamp, an amber turnsignal lamp and a clear backup lamp.

A distinctive wraparound design is used for the hardtop tail light. It has a new chrome-plated plastic housing with a new all-red tail lamp lens set into an injection molded nylon quarter end cap.

Mid-sized Monacos are available in two price classes -- Monaco and Monaco Brougham -- in a total of eight models. Each line offers a hardtop on a 115-inch wheelbase, and four-door sedan and two- and three-seat station wagons on a 117.4-inch wheelbase. The premium wagons are designated Monaco Crestwood.

All Monaco and Monaco Brougham models have poere brakes, front and rear bumper guards, forced upper air ventilation, color-keyed carpeting, day-night mirror and fiber glass, belted, radial ply tiers as standard equipment.

The wagons also have simulated woodgrain doorgate panel trim, cargo area carpet, three-way doorgate, power-steering and a full sound isolation package as standard.

A column-mounted three-speed manual transmission is standard on all Monaco and Monaco Brougham hardtops and sedans. A TorqueFlite automatic transmission is standard on wagons and optional on hardtops and sedans.

Dodge Monaco '77

Dodge Monaco intermediates for 1977 are available as two-door hardtops, four-door sedans and both six and nine-passenger station wagons. Pictured are the two-door Monaco Brougham (left photo) and the four-door Monaco Brougham (right photo).

State Board of Education adopts $663 million budget

JEFFERSON CITY — The financial problems of local schools were the basic concern of the State Board of Education as it adopted a 1977-78 budget request of more than $663 million at its September meeting.

Of the $663 million total, more than 99 per cent would go to the local schools and-or for the training of the handicapped.

Approximately $158.2 million of the budget request would come from federal funds.

The request represents an increase of about $53.6 million over current year funding. Of this, more than $27 million would go into the School Foundation Program, bringing this total to $456 million.

Approximately $18 million of the increase would go for expanded federal programs, including food services, adult basic education, vocational programs and expected increases of Title I (educationally deprived children) funding.

"The preparation of this budget has been difficult," said Commissioner of Education Arthur L. Mallory. "Keeping in mind that there are great pressures on the state's financial resources, we've also had to be aware that many school districts are now in deficit spending and that their financial problems, particularly with inflation, are becoming increasingly severe. To strike an appropriate balance between resources and local needs has been and continues to be the major challenge.

"In the final analysis," Mallory added, "we had to think of the student in the classroom. Under no manageable circumstances can we permit instructional programs to deteriorate. We must, at the least, maintain current standards and that, primarily, dictated the increased request."

Mallory noted that despite increases in the School Foundation Program in recent years, the state's share (on a percentage basis) of the total annual cost of educating a public school student has declined. For example, in 1972-73, the total cost was $888 per student. Of this, the state provided 41.9 per cent. This year, the total cost is estimated at $1,331 and the state's share is expected to be 37.7 per cent.

Two major budget areas to receive careful consideration by the State Board were special (handicapped) education and vocational education.

The approved budget request calls for the expenditure of $63.3 million for handicapped programs. Of this, more than $9 million would be in federal funds, more than $39 million from the Foundation Program and more than $13.7 million for operation of the School for the Blind at St. Louis, the School for the Deaf at Fulton and the 65 state schools for the severely handicapped.

In addition, the board approved a construction request of about $5.5 million for 10 additional schools for the severely handicapped. The priority locations of these schools are: Poplar Bluff, Sedalia, Rolla Marshall, Harrisonville, Jefferson City, Doniphan, Marshfield, Flat River and Potosi.

The vocational education operations request totals more than $37.7 million, of which about $17.5 million would be in federal funds. Requested is an increase of $1.5 million in state funds to develop 212 new or expanding vocational programs.

In addition, $1.37 million in federal revenue sharing funds were requested for the construction of four new area vocational schools. These would be located at Columbia, Independence (Fort Osage District), Joplin and Washington, Mo.

—Approved an increase in the cost of the high school equivalency examination from $6 to $7.50. The money will go to the local testing centers.

—Reviewed standards developed by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education for use by local school districts in evaluating their reading programs.

—Reviewed a screening program known as the "Missouri Kindergarten Inventory of Developmental Skills." The inventory was developed at the request of local school districts. It will be used by kindergarten teachers to develop appropriate programs for the individual child.

The next meeting of the State Board of Education is scheduled Oct. 18 and 19 at Jefferson City.

Gura's shutout clinches tie for K.C.

OAKLAND (AP) — The Kansas City Royals are home today, in the city Charles O. Finley deserted eight years ago, preparing for a pennant-clinching party.

"You could say an era is over," said Gene Tenace of the Oakland A's after Wednesday night's 4-0 Royals' victory over the Finley-owned team which has won five straight American League West titles and claimed baseball world championships in 1972-73-74.

"We're lifted up right now and I hope we stay up this weekend," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog, whose team had lost six of seven games before Wednesday night.

The A's had won five of six, charging within reach of the leaders.

"We haven't ended it yet, but we're comfortable now," said the Royals' John Mayberry.

Herzog went to his bullpen for a starting pitcher and got a four-hit shutout from Larry Gura, 4-0, while Amos Otis drove in two runs with a homer and double in his first game since a two-day stay on the bench.

One victory over the Minnesota's Twins in the final three-game series of the regular season will clinch the title. The series opens Friday night in Royals Stadium.

The Royals, with a 3½-game lead, also can uncork the champagne if the A's, moved to the West Coast from Kansas City by owner Finley in 1968, lose one of their four remaining games. Oakland faces Frank Tanana, the California Angels' 18-game winner, Friday night.

In other games Wednesday, the New York Yankees downed the Boston Red Sox 9-6, the Milwaukee Brewers topped the Baltimore Orioles 6-3, the Minnesota Twins defeated the Texas Rangers 9-1, the Cleveland Indians turned back the Detroit Tigers 3-2 and the California Angels blanked the Chicago White Sox 3-0.

Forb's perfect night has Chief and T-Bone in awe

After four years of wallowing in mediocrity as a prognosticator, the Daily Standard's fabulous Forb finally did it. What, you ask? Last week Bold Forb picked eight games correct out of eight tries for his first ever perfect night. The "Old Gladiator" hasn't made any friends with his false attempts at modesty, like...

To Chief and T-Bone: "Gee, I couldn't have done it without you guys. You had to miss at least one or my perfecto wouldn't have meant as much."

Stan "T-Bone" Hall was good on seven of the eight and the Chief was right six times, but everything pales when compared to perfection (according to Forb).

Are two perfect weeks in a row possible? Forb hedges, "Well, I don't know."

"There are a couple tough ones this week..."

CHIEF: Tilghman by 16.
FORB: Tilghman by 14.
T-BONE: Cape by 3.

CHARLESTON AT PERRYVILLE--With the up-again, down-again play of the Pirates, who knows? The odds are that Charleston won't score much, giving Perryville a decided edge.

CHIEF: Perryville by 19.
FORB: Perryville by 10.
T-BONE: Perryville by 7.

JACKSON AT POPLAR BLUFF--Without a doubt the game of the night. People in those two cities swear that this is the battle for the Northern title, although the Bulldogs figure they will have a say about that. Forb goes with the upset by coach Paul Webber's Indians. T-Bone says the only reason he went with Bluff is that, "they're at home."

CHIEF: Poplar Bluff by 2.
FORB: Jackson by 1.
T-BONE: Poplar Bluff by 7.

KENNETT AT PARAGOULD, ARKANSAS--Little is known about the Arkansas team, but Kennett has shown enough to make the panel go 100 percent with the home team.

CHIEF: Paragould by 7.
FORB: Paragould by 5.
T-BONE: Paragould by 8.

CARUTHERSVILLE AT EAST PRAIRIE--It may finally be time for the Danny Johnson express to grind to a halt. The Tigers haven't allowed a point yet and, although they admittedly haven't faced any strong teams, they figure to win this one handily...if they can stop the one-man army in the Eagle backfield.

CHIEF: Caruthersville by 15.
FORB: Caruthersville by 18.
T-BONE: Caruthersville by 13.

CHAFFEE AT ILLMO-SCOTT CITY--The Rams may slow the Chaffee offense down, but they don't figure to do enough scoring of their own to beat the high-flying Devils.

CHIEF: Chaffee by 12.
FORB: Chaffee by 13.
T-BONE: Chaffee by 13.

SOUTH PEMISCOT AT MALDEN--"They'll probably run the score up like everybody else," says T-Bone about the Malden Greenwave. "A big score would make their record more impressive. But, somebody needs to cut South Pem some slack."

CHIEF: Malden by 7.
FORB: Malden by 19.
T-BONE: Malden by 21.

DONIPHAN AT PORTAGEVILLE--Portageville has a tremendous defense and, despite last week's loss to Chaffee, may yet be in the race for the Southern title before it's all over. The Dons don't have much hope.

CHIEF: Portageville by 21.
FORB: Portageville by 27.
T-BONE: Portageville by 18.

DEXTER AT SIKESTON--"Bombs away," says the panel about this one. If the Bulldog defense is for real, this will be a true test for it. Dexter shouldn't beat Sikeston no matter what. But, it will be interesting to see how close they can make it.

CHIEF: Sikeston by 20.
FORB: Sikeston by 21.
T-BONE: Sikeston by 13.

On the year our terrible trio show marks that are improving. Forb is hitting at an 81.2 per cent rate. T-Bone stands at 78.8 and the Chief brings up the rear at 71.2 per cent. In defense of our fearless leader, however, it must be pointed out that he nailed two games right on the head last week: Chief said Jackson would win by 30 (30-0 final score) and Sikeston would win by eight. They did, 14-6. Uncanny.

On the whole our panel averaged picking within a touchdown on each of the eight games last week. Look out, Major Hoople!

TRCC to host cage clinic

The sixth annual Three Rivers Community College Basketball Coaching Clinic will be held at the Poplar Bluff Senior High Gym on October 2, 1976. Registration will start at 8:30 a.m. and the speakers session will begin at 9:00.

Gary Wacker from St. Charles High School, Ronnie Cookson, Scott County Central High, and Paul Hale from Delta High School will be visiting high school coaches who will speak.

Wacker's St. Charles team has made five consecutive trips to the Missouri State Tournament and finished third this year. Wacker has a winning record of over 75 per cent with 194 wins against only 63 losses and will speak on his full court press defense.

Cookson has been at Scott Central for six years and his teams have amassed a record of 128 wins against only 36 losses. Cookson's teams have played in the finals at the regional tournament five of the six years since he has been at Scott Central and he has won twice. This past year his team won the state tournament and Cookson was selected Coach of the Year for the second time in Southeast Missouri Area.

Paul Hale is a TRCC alumni coming back to speak after having a successful coaching debut at Stoutland and Delta High School. His Delta team this year won its regional tournament and advanced to state play. Paul played on the 1971 Raiders team the finished fourth in the N.J.C.A.A. National Tournament. Paul will speak on team defense.

The other speaker on the clinic will be Roger Pattille, Assistant Basketball Coach at TRCC. Roger will speak on the high school basketball recruit.

The tuition fee for the clinic is $5.00 and a noon luncheon will be provided along with door prizes.

Coach Gene Bess, Clinic Director, encourages anyone who would like to learn more about basketball coaching to attend. Any park department coach or other interested person would be welcome.

Cards' GM Devine gets two-year pact

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Spurred by inquiries from other clubs, the St. Louis Cardinal gave General Manager Bing Devine a new two-year contract Wednesday.

Devine's contract, which included a raise in pay, ended speculation he would be fired for the Cardinals' lacklustre performance this season.

In addition, the business end of Devine's job will henceforth be delegated to vice presidents Jim Toomey and Joe McShane.

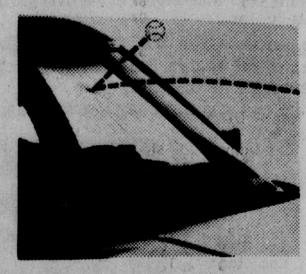

"I've really gotten away from getting into the field as much as I used to," Devine noted.

In the past Devine has operated on a series of one-year contracts with August A. Busch Jr., the 77-year-old president of the Cardinals. He has served 14 years as general manager in two separate tours.

"We've had inquiries from other clubs on Devine's availability. And we thought it best to get him committed to the Cardinals," Busch said in explaining his action.

Devine, 59, served as general manager from 1957 through most of 1964 until Busch fired him just before the Cards began a late-stretch drive to clinch the National League pennant.

SLGA ends year with luncheon

The Sikeston Ladies Golf Association held their end of the season awards luncheon at the Country Club September 28. New officers were elected for the 1977 season.

Pat Jackovic was elected as president of the SLGA, with Barbara Hambrick being chosen to the vice-president's post. Glenda Buchanan was elected secretary, while Margaret Jarrell will be treasurer. Evelyn Warf was appointed as handicap chairman, with Jo Spitzmiller and Marlene Kruger serving as tournament chairmen.

Awards were presented for the winners in the Club Championship Tournament September 21 and 22. Mary Bain was the first place winner in the Championship Class, followed by Betty Dawson, Doris Stepp and Evelyn Howington. In Class A, Lucille Martin won first, with Margaret Jarrell placing second, Mickey Atchison third and Jo Spitzmiller fourth. Lou Dye was the winner in Class B, followed by Barbara Hambrick, Betty Mitchell and Pat Jackovic. Winners in Class C were Jeanette Lathom, Margaret Baker, Rosemary Littleton and Glenda Buchanan.

The Buckner-Ragsdale Award for the season's most improved golfer went to Connie Campagna. The Regina Meyer Awards for the lowest fifteen games of the year was won by Mary Bain. Margaret Jewell won the state medal, which goes to the lowest score minus handicap on the first day of the championship tournament.

'Count' tosses no- hitter

ATLANTA (AP) — "You gotta be good to throw a no-hitter in the big leagues. Well, this proves it, I'm good," proclaimed John Montefusco, the brash San Francisco Giants' right-hander after throwing his gem at the Atlanta Braves Wednesday night.

"I always dreamed about throwing a no-hitter, but I never thought I could. I can't believe it, I can't believe it," Montefusco said after the 9-0 triumph in which "The Count" came within a walk of a perfect game.

The 26-year-old native of Long Branch, N.J., was in command all the way as his teammates had nothing but routine chances before a slim turnout of 1,369 in Atlanta's final home contest of the season.

The only runner to reach base was Jerry Royster, who walked on a 3-1 count leading off the fourth inning.

"I was only trying to stop Willie from getting a hit. I didn't think I'd stop the whole team," said a smiling Montefusco. "Montanez is a hot dog like I am, only tonight I put a little mustard on it."

"He's a pretty good pitcher but sometimes he lets his mouth get in the way of his pitching," said Montanez.

Cardinals lose to Phillies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — All is not roses in baseball — not even on a division champion.

Wayne Twitchell of the Philadelphia Phillies brushed aside the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night and afterward made such a point obvious.

"If I don't pitch any more next year I won't be where I am," Twitchell declared after nailing down a 6-5 Phillies triumph in relief.

"I believe that I've pitched too well this year to go through what I have again," he added. "Let's look at it this way. How many clubs are there that don't need pitching?"

Twitchell, who is unsigned to a Philadelphia contract, was shuffled from a starting role to the bullpen this year when the Phils acquired Jim Kaat via a trade.

But little did the right-hander realize that the reassignment would curtail his pitching to 61 2-3 innings.

"I thought when the season started that relief might be the right kind of thing due to our type of ball club," Twitchell mused.

"If you look at it realistically, the reason I haven't pitched more is because our starters have done so well and all we've needed has been short relief."

Twitchell, whose previous appearances had been mostly during the early innings, got a chance to reverse the role against St. Louis.

Tug McGraw, 7-6, spelled Larry Christenson after Mike Schmidt's 38th home run propelled the Phillies to a 5-3 lead.

An eventual exit by McGraw was necessitated, however, when Jerry Mumphrey drilled a two-run single in the sixth that produced a 5-5 tie.

The 6-foot-6 Twitchell entered in the eighth following Jerry Martin's double off John Curtis, 6-11, to drive home the winning run.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a woman 51 years of age and have a little high blood pressure but have it under control. My big problem is my legs.

I sit all day sewing at a factory. The calves of my legs swell terribly. I have been to a number of doctors. No one knows what it is. Also the hamstrings above my knees hurt. My legs are very tight at night. I lie down 10 minutes and all the swelling leaves. What could it be? I don't drink milk. Am I low on calcium or vitamin C or iron? I am overweight.

If you could help me it would be a new life for me.

DEAR READER — I doubt it is a deficiency in your diet. And apparently you do not have varicose vein problems. Your history suggests that it is related to your sitting. This is an important point for many people.

When you sit with pressure against the back of the thighs and sometimes with added pressure at the edge of the seat of the chair, you press hard on the veins that drain the legs. The pressure can cause faulty emptying of the veins. It has been known to result in clots forming in the veins, for example, after long airplane flights with improper seating.

Your overweight problem may contribute to the condition. I would suggest that you pay particular attention to your seat and make sure it fits you so that the pressure is directly on your pelvic bones with little or no pressure on the muscular part of your thighs. Also get up regularly and stretch your legs. Anyone who has to sit long periods of time would be wise to follow the same advice.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate any information you could give me on hypoglycemia. Is it possible that a person would feel worse when first going on a hypoglycemia diet?

DEAR READER — Yes, you can feel worse. Particularly if you really don't have hypoglycemia. The diagnosis is made far too often in people who really have other problems, including anxiety, instead of hypoglycemia. I am afraid the diagnosis is often used as a wastebasket to label all sorts of ill defined complaints that appear to have no ready explanation.

The diagnosis should never be made unless it can be demonstrated that typical symptoms occur at the same time that a low blood glucose value is documented. Low blood sugar levels without symptoms during testing is not a satisfactory basis for the diagnosis. Symptoms, which could be caused by other things, without the low blood glucose reading cannot be used alone for a diagnosis.

Many hypoglycemia diets are low carbohydrate diets. The sharp reduction of carbohydrate intake to extremely low levels in normal people leads to loss of salt, water and chemical imbalance and may cause a person to feel tired, faint, or have a headache. If you don't have hypoglycemia and that is the diet you have been given — a so called high protein diet — that may be your problem.

What's the law?
Case of the puzzled reporter

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Norton was a newspaperman with a good nose for a good story. When he latched onto a heart-rending saga about a mother and her teen-age son's bout with drugs, however, it looked like perplexed Norton might have to pay through that same good nose.

While he wrote up the story in true and accurate fashion, clearly indicating that the names used were completely the product of his imagination, it just so happened that there really lived in the community a mother and her teen-age son with the very same names that Norton had arbitrarily chosen.

And, if that wasn't an eye-twitcher, Norton became a nervous wreck when they sued him for a bundle of money, claiming that he had defamed them.

"How could I have defamed them?" protested Norton in court. "I didn't even know they existed."

"That's irrelevant," was the answer. "His story identified us by name and what he identified us as was an outrage. Consequently, as good and upstanding citizens in our community, we're entitled to be paid for the harm he caused us."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make perplexed Norton pay damages for defaming the mother and her son?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge ruled, in effect, that since the mother and her son were well- regarded as good and upstanding citizens in their community, no person who read Norton's story could reasonably have believed that it applied to them, particularly when the story clearly contained a notice that the names used were fictitious.

(Based upon a 1975 U.S. Court of Appeal Decision)

HOWARD C. TOOKE

Republican Candidate for
STATE SENATOR

Speaks out on UTILITIES RATES:

The current attitude seems to be that massive gas and electric rate increases are inevitable, and that customers should accept this situation and not object so much.
I have never agreed, with this; I believe we should object every chance we get.
The City of Cape Girardeau officially opposed the acquisition of Missouri Utilities Company by Union Electric Company. We lost, but at least we tried.
As Mayor of Cape Girardeau, I have been an active participant in several rate cases before the Public Service Commission.
This is the only place we can object, but it should not be necessary for cities or individuals to intervene in rate cases.
The state should intervene for its citizens!
More on this subject next week.

Federal drought aid won't be widespread but welcomed

By MARIAN McDOWELL
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — How much federal assistance can the average Missouri farmer expect this year from federal loans being processed by the Farmers Home Administration (FHA)? Not much say some state agricultural officials.

While emergency farm loans have received much publicity from the media and state officials, less than 10 per cent of Missouri farmers are expected to use them.

"I doubt the low-interest federal loans will help the average farmer very much," C. R. Johnston, president of Missouri Farm Bureau Federation, said.

Many drought-stricken farmers say that eligibility requirements for the low-interest loans are too restrictive and help only a few.

Gene Cunningham of Columbia, chairman of the state Agricultural Disaster Committee, said other federal assistance programs are not so restrictive and have been geared to help all farmers suffering losses. These programs place no financial limitations on the farmer, and assistance is based on the need of the farm.

Federal assistance programs of this type include federal relief payments to farmers with substantial reductions in feed grain, wheat and cotton due to circumstances beyond their control, federal assistance for the transportation of hay to drought-stricken areas and an emergency feed program for livestock farmers.

Federal relief payments in 1974 totalled $31.9 million, but this figure dropped to $14.2 million in 1975. The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Commissions make the payments based on the historical production of the farm.

Oats are the only available grain in the emergency feed program, and because the amount is small the program is not expected to operate past Oct. 31.

FHA loans, which have been a public issue for both gubernatorial candidates Gov. Christopher S. Bond and Joseph P. Teasdale will probably be available to only a fraction of Missouri farmers.

Department of Agriculture statistics show crop losses in 1974 close to $500 million. In the same year, FHA made 5,203 loans totalling $76.8 million.

The 1975 drought was not as severe, however, and reported crop losses totalled $250 million. FHA made loans to 1,472 farmers amounting to $46.2 million in federal assistance.

State Agricultural Director James Boillot explained that most farmers will not qualify for the low-interest loans because "they can still secure commercial credit."

The "test of credit" provision requires the farmer to prove he cannot get credit from any other source. County FHA supervisors across the state agree most farm loans are being handled by private lenders in the local area.

Many farmers seek out the FHA loans because interest is figured at five per cent whereas interest rates with private lenders currently are around nine per cent.

Cunningham would like to see no test of credit. "This requirement has been in at times and left out at times. I think there is a trend in Congress not to spend money as readily. the FHA loans will be a great deal of help to those who qualify, but a substantial per cent of the farmers are not eligible."

On the other side of the coin, John Harvey, acting state director of the FHA office in Columbia, believes the test of credit is necessary.

"I think it is important to understand the philosophy behind FHA. FHA is a supplemental source of credit, and does not want to compete with private lenders. The test of credit is in line with our objectives because FHA loans are intended to help those farmers who really need help and can't get money or credit from any other source," Harvey said.

Ron Alexander, area agronomist for the Richmond Farm Bureau, said it is too difficult to qualify for the loans.

"These loans aren't much help. If a farmer can't get a nine per cent loan from the bank, he is usually in a sell-out situation," Alexander said.

The test of credit requirement, added by Congress to the 1975 federal disaster aid program, will apply also to the 1976 farm loans.

This restriction was added to the FHA loan program after 1974. Some county FHA supervisors think the test of credit resulted from abuses which occurred that year. Others say the test of credit was left out of the 1974 program to stimulate the economy by reaching more farmers.

Harvey acknowledged that any time a federal program of this size is administered, the possibility of some abuse exists.

Several county FHA officers across the state say there are too many headaches in determining eligibility for emergency loans.

Don Wemhoff, FHA supervisor in Audrain County, said the five year production history is not needed in a disaster situation like this.

The required production history must include the farmer's production costs and crop yields for the past five years. The farmer also must list the number of acres and the average yield per acre.

Under the 1974 loan program, farmers were required to provide a three-year history of production costs and crop yields.

"I'd say 99 out of 100 farmers can't tell you their production cost and crop yields for the last five years. So how do you pinpoint it? If we just looked at the farmer's financial statement and talked to his banker, we would have a good indication," Wemhoff said.

Harvey said the five year production average may not be the best approach, but FHA must administer the program as it was passed by Congress.

"Because Missouri is in such a disastrous situation, the possibility of modification in the form of amended legislation is not totally out.

Economic index drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government index designed to anticipate future economic trends fell during August for the first time since the current recovery began, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said its composite index of leading indicators fell 1.5 per cent in August, due primarily to a higher layoff rate in manufacturing and reduced business spending.

The drop is the first since February, 1975, and the largest since the 3.4 per cent decline a month before that.

A decline in the index is generally a signal of slower growth in the economy. The initial report is subject to substantial revision, so that the initial figures are not necessarily solid. Most economists consider a three-month drop or increase in the index to be necessary before they consider a change in direction for the economy is indicated.

But the index drop does come after three consecutive months of a rising unemployment rate despite growing employment and in the midst of what administration economists consider a lull in economic growth.

Administration economists have been contending that the lull is only temporary.

The August decline follows a five-tenths of 1 per cent advance in July and leaves the index, which is at 108 per cent of its 1967 average, precisely where it was in May.

The leading indicator index is composed of a dozen individual economic statistics selected for their position in the forefront of economic trends. Of the 11 statistics available in time for computation in the August index, eight pointed downward.

The layoff rate in manufacturing jumped to 1.5 per cent in August after registering a 1.1 per cent rate in July. The volume of contracts and orders for factories and facilities slipped 12.5 per cent after marking a 1.8 per cent advance the previous month.

Other factors contributing to the August decline were a shorter average work week for factory workers, a slower growth in assets held by consumers and business, a slower formation of new businesses, lower stock prices, a smaller amount of money in circulation after adjustment for inflation and a smaller volume of new orders received by manufacturers of consumer products and their suppliers.

SeMo State enrollment hits record of 8,087

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Showing gains in nearly every category, Southeast Missouri State University's official on-campus fall enrollment is a record 8,087 an increase of 151 students over a year ago, reports Registrar Alton Bray.

In a related matter, Housing Director Shelton "Butch" Smith reported that the university's residence halls are more than 100 per cent occupied. Occupancy in auxiliary housing, which includes some rooms at the Town House Motel and the Foster House apartment building which the university leased for the fall semester, is slightly below 100 per cent, Smith said.

Both Bray and Smith addressed the university's board of regents.

Smith said that 17 of the 38 apartments in the Fountain Plaza, an apartment building which Southeast Missouri State leased this summer to provide married student housing, are occupied.

Expressing optimism that the building would be full for the second semester, he noted it was good that the demand for the married student apartments was not any greater for this semester, since some of the items needed to furnish the units had not arrived by the start of school. He also noted that the university had experienced some electrical and plumbing problems in the building.

The housing director said he expects to be able to house all single students on the campus for the spring semester, and there should be no need to continue the Town House Motel and Foster House leases.

In his report, Bray said, "We are probably at about capacity in our enrollment. There were probably 200 students who did not show up this fall because we couldn't house them."

The registrar added that 215 students who were on hand when school began have now dropped out. They are not reflected in the enrollment total, he said.

This fall's student body includes 1,829 first-time freshmen and a total freshman class of 3,008. There are 1,640 sophomores in the student body, 1,292 juniors, 1,477 seniors and 670 graduate students.

Only in the junior and graduate student categories are the figures lower than last year.

Females outnumber males in the student body, 4,169 to 3,918. Single students outnumber married students, 6,667 to 1,420.

Who Can Afford To Spend $7,000,000 On Waterfowl Habitat In This Recession?

.....We're Ducks Unlimited.....

We Can't Afford Not To!

Your local Ducks Unlimited Committee has joined over 750 others nationwide in a vital conservation effort. Since its foundation in 1937, Ducks Unlimited has grown to over 170,000 members in four countries, on two continents, with but one goal, preservation of waterfowl in North America. This year through the local fund-raising dinners put on by committees like the one in your area, Ducks Unlimited hopes to raise 10 million for wetland habitat development, bringing to a total of $58,000,000 the sum spent on saving these vital watery habitats, habitats that support over 300 species of birds, fish and mammals . . . some on the Federal Government's Endangered Species List.

Habitat is the key to wildlife preservation. In the face of expanded agricultural development, draining, filling, and the other manmade hazards facing our waterfowl, we must put forth our greatest efforts now if they are to ever have sufficient habitat in the future. You can help and have a good time doing it. Attend the DU dinner in your area . . . as far as the waterfowl are concerned, YOU CAN'T AFFORD NOT TO!

Harris' are indicted for the kidnaping of Patricia Hearst

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — William and Emily Harris, underground companions of Patricia Hearst, have been indicted for the kidnaping of the newspaper heiress 2½ years ago.

Shortly before the Alameda County Grand Jury returned the indictment Wednesday, Miss Hearst's attorneys filed a motion for a new trial on the armed bank robbery for which she has been sentenced to seven years in prison.

The indictment accuses the two avowed members of the Symbionese Liberation Army of kidnaping for ransom with bodily harm in the Feb. 4, 1974, abduction of Miss Hearst from her Berkeley apartment. The maximum penalty would be life in prison without possibility of parole.

Bail for the Harrises was set at $300,000 each, with arraignment set for Friday in Alameda County Superior Court.

The indictment supercedes a criminal complaint filed by the district attorney against the couple for which a preliminary hearing had been scheduled Oct. 7 in Berkeley Municipal Court.

The indictment — 13 counts against each defendant — includes charges of robbery and assault likely to produce great bodily harm against Steven Weed, with whom Miss Hearst shared the apartment from which she was kidnaped.

Weed, who has not seen his former fiance since the abduction, was seriously beaten at the time.

Charleston girl enters competition in talent show at Mid-South Fair

CHARLESTON— Lucianne Goodin, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lee Goodin, returned to the Mid-South Fair in Memphis, Tenn. Wednesday to compete in the semifinals of the talent show after being selected as one of the five acts and two alternates from the first elimination round held Friday.

The talented young ventriloquist and her friend, Mickey, were selected to perform at the fair after she was awarded second place in the junior division of the local Kiwanis Club talent show in August.

The Mid-South Fair, which hosts the largest youth talent contest of its kind in the world, has attracted 16,000 persons during preliminary contests in seven states this year.

Sponsored by the Memphis Press-Scimitar and WREG-TV , the winner, to be selected tonight during finals at Mid-South Coliseum, will be awarded $500 in cash, an opportunity to appear next summer at Libertyland in Memphis and an audition with CBS Television.

Miss Goodin began her training in ventriloquism three years ago when she received instruction from Beverly Massegee, an evangelist who also presented Lucianne her first "dummy", Mickey.

Lucianne has another friend she has dubbed Mouse — an identical twin of Mickey. She has developed a second voice for Mouse and performs equally as well with both in songs and skits.

Prior to entering the local talent contest, Lucianne and her "friends" have entertained chiildren in the younger grades at schools, appeared on a telethon and were selected by judges last week to perform at Libertyland following her first elimination round.

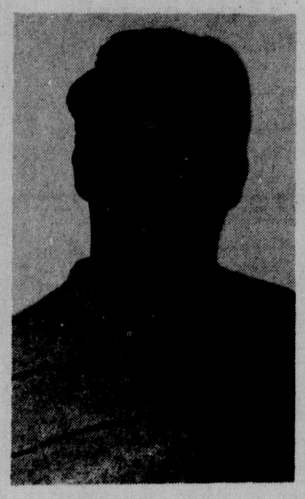

Lucianne and Mickey

Ventriloquist Lucianne Goodin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lee Goodin of Charleston, and her friend Mickey are competing this week at the Mid-South Fair in Memphis. She performed Wednesday in the semifinal round as one of five variety and two alternate acts selected.

Givens is named semifinalist for scholarship

Michael W. Givens

EAST PRAIRIE— Michael W. Givens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Givens of East Prairie, has been named a semifinalist in the 1977 National Merit Scholarship Program. Nationally, this honor comes to about 15,000 seniors throughout the 50 states. Over a million students from 17,000 high schools entered the 1977 Merit Program while they were juniors.

The semifinalists are the highest scoring students from each state who took the preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. These academically talented students will have an opportunity to continue in the competition for about 3,850 merit scholarships to be awarded in the spring of 1977. These scholarships will include 2,850 for four years and the remainder will receive $1,000 for one year.

To become a finalist, Givens will be recommended for scholarship consideration by his school, where he has a straight 4.0-point average -- meaning that he has never received a grade below A -- and he must confirm the high score by taking a second examination, the SAT.

On the preliminary test he made a score which ranked him in th upper 50 per cent of the 99th percentile. About 90 per cent of the original number will become eligible for the second examination. Each finalist will receive a certificate of merit next February.

On the light side of things

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — State officials say that a shopper bought a frozen chicken at a Tallahassee supermarket last week — and found the butt of a marijuana cigarette packed with the giblets.

Jane Robinson, director of the state's Consumer Services Division, said Monday that Leon County sheriff's deputies confirmed that the butt was part of a contraband cigarette and turned the evidence over to the Food and Drug Administration.

Mrs. Robinson said the federal agency handled the case because the chicken, which the supermarket replaced for the shopper, had been shipped in from outside the state.

"Herbert Hoover used to promise a chicken in every pot," she said. "Now we're getting pot in chicken."

Revenue sharing vote to decide adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, seeking to wrap up its business and go home for the year, is voting on whether to override a presidential veto and whether to extend the federal revenue-sharing proggam.

The revenue-sharing package emerged Wednesday as the key that will determine whether Congress meets its weekend deadline for adjournment. President Ford said Wednesday he will sign or veto two different jobs bills only after Congress acts on the revenue-sharing bill that Ford is seeking.

The House today takes up Ford's veto on Wednesday of a $56.6-billion appropriation bill for the departments of Health, Education and Welfare and Labor. Ford said the bill was $4 billion more than he requested and was inflationary.

The two jobs bills awaiting presidential action are a $3.7-billion measure for public works construction and legislation extending 260,000 public service jobs in state and local governments through the coming fiscal year.

Because these bills will be killed by a pocket veto if Congress adjourns and Ford doesn't act 10 days after he received them, supporters of the measures want Ford to sign or veto them. If Ford vetoes them, Congress then could attempt an override before adjourning this weekend.

Ford said Wednesday he will make decisions on the two bills if Congress approves the revenue-sharing bill that comes before the House today. That measure would provide $25.5 billion in federal revenue-sharing funds to cities, states and counties through 1980.

House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill said Wednesday that Congress will stay in session beyond Friday if that is necessary to prevent a pocket veto.

The veto of the HEW-Labor bill was Ford's 59th in his 49 months in office. Of the 59, Congress has overridden 11.

An override attempt failed Wednesday when the Senate sustained Ford's veto of a bill authorizing $100 million for research to develop automobiles that would pollute less and burn less fuel. The House voted to override but the Senate failed to do so.

Congress also took these other actions Wednesday:

JOBLESS BENEFITS

The unemployment tax on employers would be doubled and jobless benefits would be extended to all state and local government workers, under a bill approved by the Senate. The measure now goes to a conference with the House, which has approved a bill that is similar but which also extends unemployment compensation to farm workers and many domestics.

The Senate bill also would make it impossibile for a person to draw both a retirement check and full unemployment benefits.

Assistant prosecutor resigns

BENTON — Steve Taylor, assistant prosecuting attorney of Scott County, has announced his resignation to the Scott County Court, effective today.

Taylor said he will remain in Sikeston and become associated with the law firm of Gilmore & Gilmore, devoting full time to private practice.

Taylor released a statement in which he said:

It is with much reluctance that I tender my resignation of commission as assistant prosecuting attorney today. For 45 months I have worked for the people of Scott County in this area, and it has been a rewarding experience.

"I can only compliment all of those with whom I have worked in the prosecuting attorney's office for their diligence and competence. I must praise every level of law enforcement with whom I have worked for their unending honesty and efforts to help us all.

"We are fortunate in Scott County and this area to have the police officers, highway patrol officers, sheriffs and deputies, departmental agents and court officers that we do have. The tireless work carried on by all these people reflects the interest and support given to them by our citizens. They have earned my highest respect."

Medicare fees boosted by 19 per cent today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The portion of hospital fees that 25 million Medicare beneficiaries have to pay out of their own pockets was boosted a record 19 per cent today by the Social Security Administration.

The hike, effective next Jan. 1, means that an elderly or disabled person entering a hospital in 1977 will be responsible for the first $124 of the initial bill, covering up to two months, compared with the present charge of $104.

Similar increases apply to the share of costs that must be borne by the patient for extended stays in a hospital or skilled nursing home.

Social Security Commisioner James B. Cardwell said the increase is necessary to keep pace with hospital costs, which have been shooting up at more than twice the overall cost of living.

Medicare covers all hospital charges for up to the first 60 days except for an amount which, in theory, represents the cost on the day of admission.

Under the federal formula designed to balance off inflation, the price of that first — and supposedly average — day goes up $20. In fact, however, the computations lag behind actual costs by about two years.

After the patient picks up the bill next year, Medicare will pay through the 60th day.

But then further increases apply which, for some patients, could prove even more dear. They will have to pay $31 daily out of their own pockets for the 61st through the 90th day, up from the present $26 daily.

Post-hospital stays lasting more than 20 days in a skilled nursing home will require beneficiaries to pay $15.20 daily for the 21st through the 100th day, up from the present $13.

Medicare patients who must be hospitalized more than 90 consecutive days can draw upon their one-time-only lifetime reserve — an extra 60 days — but will have to pay $62 daily instead of the current $52.

The agency said the cost of Medicare hospital insurance is expected to rise from an overall $13.6 billion this year to $16.1 billion in 1977.

About 24.7 million persons are eligible for the benefits this year. They are expected to number 25.3 million next year.

Social Security said the average hospital stay now costs about $1,600 per patient.

Mingo to dedicate new visitor center Oct. 17

PUXICO— In a special ceremony, Nathaniel P. Reed, the Interior Department's assistant secretary for fish, wildlife and parks, will dedicate a unique new visitor center in a public ceremony at 2 p.m. Oct. 17 at Mingo National Wildlife Refuge.

The dedication ceremony will emphasize two important activities at the refuge: the environmental education and interpretive programs and the work of the Job Corps Civilian Conservation Center.

The 22,000-acre refuge area provides sanctuary for migratory waterfowl and other wildlife. The Job Corps Center teaches voational trades to disadvantaged youth through natural resource conseration construction and development projects.

Job Corpsmen built Mingo's visitor center. It sets on a bluff overlooking famous Mingo Swamp and houses educational exhibits explaining the wildlife, geology and ecology of Mingo National Wildlife Refuge.

Mingo Swamp, the last natural hardwood swamp left in Missouri, is a large part of the refuge. As the Mississippi River shifted its bed some 40 miles east more than 18,000 years ago, it left a pristine swamp that has since supported wildlife and man.

All the major cultures of the Mississippi Valley have lived there. Their artifacts, burial grounds and Indian mounds remain as evidence of their presence.

Tall tupelo trees and remnants of cypress forests rise from Mingo Swamp as monument to a part of our natural heritage exempted from timber and agricultural cultivation. Twelve state and national champion trees flourish on Mingo's acres.

Wildlife in abundnce benefit from the habitat preservation and restoration efforts of the Fish and Wildlife Service. Deer, beaver, wild turkeys, bald eagles, wood ducks and 60 different kinds of reptile and amphibians call Mingo National Wildlife Refuge home. More

Clubb man killed, wife seriously hurt

SILVA — A Clubb man was killed and his wife seriously injured Wednesday when their car and a tractor-trailer truck collided two miles east of town on Highway 34.

The highway patrol reported the death was the 87th on Southeast Missouri roads this year, compared to 91 at the same time last year.

Jacob Henson, 84, was pronounced dead at the scene and Mary Frances Henson, 65, of Clubb was seriously injured in the 11:15 a.m. accident.

According to William Lee Gaines, 44, driver of a westbound tractor-trailer, Henson's eastbound car was on the wrong side of the road. Gaines said Henson swerved to the left, then pulled back into the right lane and struck his tractor-trailer rig head on.

Henson's body was taken to Gish-Bowles-Coter Funeral Home in Piedmont. Mrs. Henson was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Robbery loss set at $449

The Public Safety Department has revised its report on the amount of money taken Tuesday in an armed robbery at VIP Discount Gas Station No. 2, 415 W. Malone Ave.

The department had originally said $811 was taken, but has now put the loss at $449.

The money was taken from an attendant by a man armed with a pistol and wearing a blue towel over his face.

Man sought for bank robberies

MARQUAND, Mo. (AP) — Not far from where Jesse James used to prowl, police have mounted a search for an elusive backwoodsman who they say is responsible for two or three bank robberies over the past eight months.

As darkness settled over the rugged Ozark foothill countryside Wednesday night, police on horseback and using bloodhounds continued their hunt for James A. Brooks, but the Highway Patrol's plane was grounded because of gathering gray skies.

"He's a pretty good woodsman," said Capt. Wayne Brooks, commander of the patrol's Poplar Bluff headquarters. "The area is so densely wooded up there, you just can hardly observe anything from the air at all."

The FBI and Highway Patrol have been looking for the 29-year-old Brooks since last February, when they charged him with the $8,000 robbery of the Bank of Caledonia. He is also charged with the July 18 holdup of the Belgrade State Bank, in which $6,000 was taken.

The area in which the robberies have taken place is about 100 miles south of St. Louis.

The search for Brooks intensive after Tuesday's robbery of the Bank of Marquand in which $10,000 was taken by a man dressed in a hunter's camouflage outfit. Police later identified him as Brooks, but he has not been formally charged with that crime.

"We feel it's the same man," said Leon Dobbs, assistant agent in charge of the FBI's St. Louis office. "He seems to be more or less like a Robin Hood."

Those who went to high school with Brooks in Caledonia say he is an avid outdoorsman, familiar with every tree of the Clark National Forest which spreads out over southeast Missouri.

"We're giving it the full court press," Dobbs said. "We've got some pretty good leads on the guy's activities for the last few days. We found a lean-to in the woods a few miles from Marquand, and have found witnesses putting him in the woods as of a couple three days ago."

He said police believe Brooks goes back to live in the woods after each holdup, and that he is getting assistance "from a few close friends."

"It's a close-knit area. He's a local character, but there are no haboring warrants out yet," Dobbs said.

There have been no injuries

A livestock trailer valued at $700 was reported stolen from a farm on Ables Road between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 7 a.m. Wednesday, according to the Department of Public Safety.

The trailer was taken from the Robert Green farm. Three saddles also were taken from the barn, but were discovered a short distance away.

The department also received a report of a lawnmower being stolen at the Daisey Crocker home, 105 Adams St., sometime between Sept. 20 and Thursday.

The mower, valued at $215, was taken from under a carport.

Medicine stolen at Oran

ORAN — An undetermined quantity of medicines was reported stolen early today from the office of Dr. Carter P. Fenton, the Scott County Sheriff's Department announced this morning.

Deputy Sheriff Dave Richbourg, who investigated the break-in reported a shelf full of medicines was taken, but no controlled drugs were among them. The value of the medicines had not been determined this morning.

Richbourd said the office was entered sometime between 2:30 and 7 a.m. through a window which had been broken leading into a restroom.

The sheriff's department is continuing its investigation.

IMMUNIZATION ACTION MONTH

The real wealth of any nation is its people, and this generation's most important work is keeping today's crop of children healthy, educating them and giving them a sense of integrity and respect for the nation's past, as well as hope for its future. Modern parents have unprecedented Opportunities to guard the health of their children.

The month of October was first designated in 1973 as Immunization Action Month -- a time to remind everyone responsible for the care of young children of their opportunity and their obligation to guard those youngsters against many diseases, now totally preventable, that were the scourges of mankind for millenniums. Under the direction of the U.S. Center for Disease Control, the Immunization Action Month (IAM) program this year is a nation-wide campaign to raise the immunization levels of millions of preschool children. The American Medical Association, joined by the National Medical Association, the American Academy of Family Physicians, the American Osteopathic Association, and the American Academy of Pediatrics which will be coordinating IAM, are lending their support to the effort. The goal is to immunize at least 90 per cent of an estimated five million susceptable children between the ages of one and four against polio, measles, rubella, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough by the time they enter the first grade. Physicians will be encouraged to urge parents, if available records do not indicate it, to determine if their children have been immunized against these diseases and, if not, to take immediate action.

Last year, following the first IAM program, there was up to a 20 per cent increase in vaccines used to prevent measles, rubella and polio during the two months of October and November. During the month of October, 1976, see to it that your children are protected. It is a little something you can do for America's future.

THE CROATIAN CAPER

The hijacking of a TWA jetliner by Croatian nationalists ought to focus our attention, however briefly, on the explosive situation that is Tito's Yugoslavia today.

Craotia is an area of that country that belonged to the old Austro-Hungarian empire before World War I. The Croats detest the dominant Serbs in Yugoslavia and vice versa. During World War II, an "independent" Croatia was established as a German puppet state and perhaps 100,000 Serbs were massacred. The Serbs retaliated in kind against Croats living in their areas. It is no wonder that permanent bad blood has developed.

Croatian separatists have been responsible for many acts of terrorism, including assassinations of Yugoslav diplomats. They are passionately devoted to their cause. Their need is to enlist the support of "world opinion." So, mistakenly, they hijack an airplane to get attention.

The problem may become much more than that when the now ailing 84-year old Tito departs the Yugoslav scene. His strong man rule has held together the multinational Yugoslav state up to now, but there are many who fear the worse when he goes. If Hungary and Yugoslavia are a precedent, the Soviets will rush in with tank guns and mobile rockets blazing when Tito dies, to support the faction that will promise allegiance to the Kremlin. And pleas for Craotian independence will be silenced forever.

Before discarding the dramatic effort of the Croatians to attract world attention as too insignificant to worry about, we should not forget that it was an assassination at Sarajevo that sparked World War I. The Croatian caper should remind us that the Balkan cauldron still simmers.

MORE THAN JUST ANOTHER PRETTY FACE. On display at Goldblatt's in Chicago recently was what at first glance appeared to be a live model but in actuality was a fiberglas manikin whose facial expressions, including, eye, lip and chin movements came from a projected focused on her from a few feet away. The voice came from a tape synchronized with the film. Duane Machtig, Chicago film producer and the doll's creator, says that the most difficult thing is molding a manikin's face to match the face and voice of the model that he will use for the film. The mold is made from a special plastic, and the heads are removable. The Goldblatt's manikin was the first to be used to sell a product (an 18 hour Playtex all-in-one), but other Machtig manikins have been in use for about a year. For example, a Gen. George Patton manikin is on exhibit in New York and Hess's department store in Allentown, Pa. has a manikin in a bicentennial display. They don't come cheaply either. They rent for $3,600 weekly, can be leased for $309.99 a month for 24 months (with an option to buy after 26 months), or can be purchased for $6,000.

And automation hits the corral. Richard Glaser of Roseville, Calif. has invented a Mechanical Animated Cow that he believes is better than the real thing even though it doesn't give milk or provide steaks. His reasons are based on the cow's performance in training horses to work around cattle. Being powered by batteries and driven like a tractor the cow can move faster in all directions than real cows, is less expensive to feed and doesn't tire after 30 days of being chased around by a horse. It just keeps "moo-vin' on." Cost-$3,395.

It has become a regular rite of autumn—the teacher strike.

Across the country, from Manchester, N.H., to Buffalo, N.Y., to Marion, Ill., school systems faced either actual strikes or threatened strikes as students prepared to return to classes. Worst afflicted was Pennsylvania, where some 20 separate strikes involved 4,500 teachers and affected more than 85,000 children.

Planned strikes in other cities, as in Boston, Philadelphia and Tacoma, Wash., were averted at the 11th hour. Eventually all the strikes will be settled and teachers can get down to the business of teaching and their pupils to the business of learning—until next time.

No uninformed outsider is qualified to pass judgment on the merits of any of these disputes, but the fact that the teacher strike has become a routine phenomenon is a matter of concern to all Americans, whether or not they have school-age children.

There is no question but that teaching is one of the most demanding of jobs. We note, however, that in the past few years teachers in both public and private schools have won impressive financial gains commensurate with their vital role in society. No longer is the teacher one of the lowest figures on the economic totem pole.

Unfortunately, there is accumulating evidence that higher teacher pay has not been accompanied by higher academic achievement among the nation's youth.

They may not realize it, but the striking teachers are still teaching, even though they may be holding a picket sign outside a school building instead of a textbook in a classroom. They are giving their students an impressive lesson in the power of organization, and of the right of people to get together to bargain collectively with their employer and to withhold their services if necessary.

We wonder how many teachers will take the time later to give their students an equally as impressive lesson in the responsibilities that are the other side of that right.

They might point out, for example, that there is always an interested third party to any labor dispute—the public—and that it is the public that always ultimately foots the bill for the settlement. In the case of a factory strike, it is the customers for the product that is manufactured. In the case of a school or other municipal services strike, it is the taxpayers.

That being true, the public is fully justified in expecting greater value received for the greater financial outlay it is called upon to make.

Teachers might also discuss the underlying reason for most strikes today, which is the natural desire of people to keep up with inflation and the rising cost of living. They might usefully explore with their students to what degree this inflation is the result of too many Americans demanding too many benefits from government without being willing to pay for them—again, the imbalance between rights and responsibilities.

The teachers are teaching, but far too often it is the wrong lesson.

Paralyze the U.S.?

Federal employes union threatens to slow down the entire Government

WASHINGTON — An now one of the brashest and biggest national federal employes' unions bluntly, and with considerable collective chest thumping, is threatening literally to slow down the U.S. government.

This would be a mass -- and massive -- felony. Punishable by a year and a day in prison. But in the past week, some 2,000 delegates to the American Federation of Government Employes national convention, under militantly new leadership, have told the public that it's about time we, the people, learned how hard the federal civil service works and how much more money the 2,900,000 federal employes must get in their upcoming raise.

And to prove to the public how really indispensable these suffering employes are, they will protest failure to get the full amount they're seeking -- by working "by-the-rule," or by the book or by ancient job descriptions, classifications and the small print evolving from the gaslight era.

They warned that this would slow mailing of Social Security checks to the aged; benefit payments to the ex-servicemen and women and others dependent on the Veterans Administration; tie up or snarl air traffic; get poultry and meat inspection down to a crawl and stall military shipments and care of missiles.

Most vital of all would be the disruption of the "delivery" of health services.

Presumably at the Pentagon, Secretary Don Rumsfeld would have to use smoke signals instead of the computertized communications systems. No gag, this.

Actually the AFGE leaders, tumultuously assembled this past week, said that "the protest action will be tempered in those areas where both the lives, health or safety of American citizens would be endangered."

But, added the federal union's high command, which speaks for some 600,000 civil service employes, all this is threatened by a reduction in government employes and the failure of President Ford to grant them higher wages. Actually the slashing of the AFGE wage hike demands down to a 4.83 per cent increase was mandated by the Congress and not Mr. Ford.

Further, the Civil Service Commission reports that an additional 19,000 federal employes were hired in July -- the most recent figure. A good many of the new personnel were taken aboard by the Departmsnts of Interior, HEW, Agriculture and Defense. Only the Postal Service work force was trimmed.

And what the big union further demands is the retention of a 1 per cent "kicker" bonus, an annual topping by that amount of each yearly Cost of Living Allowance for retirees This practice has just been killed by the Congress.

Today federal pensions take $17 billion annually out of the U.S. Treasury and by 1985 the cost may be almost $45 billion a year.

But, says the union, failure to get what it wants "jeopardizes the delivery of those services" -- meaning lives, health or safety of American citizens. The words are theirs.

For the moment there's no need to address oneself to the issues here. Point is there is very little which can be negotiated under the Federal Civil Service law. The right to strike the federal government, or slow it down, or to go to impasse fact-finding is non-existent. The Congress makes the broad decisions on wages and fringes.

Thus, the "work-to-rule," or by the book, is a slowdown maneuver towards the actual striking of the federal government. Such as in France.

Some of the AFGE leaders appear to believe they are on the bricks in a hospital strike. Those supposedly gentle civil servants turned tiger, for example, when they got out of their car pools at the U.S. Department of Labor.

This citadel of workers' rights is staffed by members of the AFGE's turbulent Lodge 12. They've raised hell in the corridors. They've roared at "the bosses." They've seized the office of an Assistant Secretary of Labor. They've "sat-in."

They gave ex-Labor Secretary Pete Brennan a hard time. And more recently they've badly shaken up the incumbent Bill Usery with those internal demonstrations and threates. It's all so tough he has had to call in a specil three-man mediation committee headed by the dean of mediators and meditators, Dave Cole of Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower days.

The Lodge 12 brothers and sisters want the department all tied up for themselves, it's reported. They want promotions and other upward an sideways mobility and improvements to go to "in-house" staffers. This freezes out AFGE members in other departments.

It's all very embarrassing for Bill Usery -- as it was when the Lodge members threatened to picket a Labor Department celebration recently at the Kennedy Center.

Most of this has been behind the scenes. The sovereign government of the U.S. is being roared at, threatened and mocked by some of its own employes. Who gave them the right? Why is no one roaring back? The people have the right to know.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Taxpayers' Money Put to Flight

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The Lockheed military-industrial empire is now so heavily subsidized by the taxpayers that the company allegedly has siphoned government money into its commercial projects.

Federal investigators have accused Lockheed of channeling more than $45 million of the taxpayers' money into such commercial developments as the L-011 jetliner.

This was accomplished through a complex bookkeeping maneuver. In its simplest form, the technique was to commingle costs from nongovernment work with costs from government contracts, explain the investigators.

It is alleged that Lockheed charged to defense contracts some costs that actually went into building the civilian jetliners. Thus the unwitting taxpayer wound up helping finance the company's commercial endeavors.

It is small wonder that Lockheed had trouble separating its government and commercial bookkeeping, for the industrial colossus did a whopping $2.2 billion in government business last year. At the pleading of President Ford, Congress also granted $200 million in federal loan guarantees to keep the company from going bankrupt.

Its books, therefore, are supposed to be open to government auditors. But as we reported in July, the Defense Contract Audit Agency was barred from inspecting Lockheed's books. The company preferred to deal with the more lenient Renegotiation Board.

The audit agency, nevertheless, has been investigating Lockheed's vast California aerospace facilities, Seattle shipyards and Marietta, Ga., complex. The Renegotiation Board, for its part, assigned a special three-man committee to procure other financial data.

The General Accounting Office, thereafter, asked to see Renegotiation Board's financial findings on Lockheed. This information was submitted, together with a highly confidential covering letter, by Chairman Richard Holmquist.

Although Holmquist's letter doesn't specify the precise amount that Lockheed took from Peter to pay Paul, it is estimated that well over $45 million was involved in the juggling operation in 1972 alone.

President Ford, meanwhile, has held down the Renegotiation Board's staff to less than 200. This has left too few watchdogs to keep an eye on the skulduggery of the industrial giants. While the President pinches pennies, his industrial pals apparently are stealing millions.

Footnote: Lockheed has denied knowledge of any diversion of funds from government to commercial purposes. The Defense Contract Audit Agency and the Renegotiation Board declined comment. Meanwhile, Rep. Josph Minish, D.-N.J., is seeking to give the audit agency a larger role in checking the books of government contractors. His legislation has been sidetracked, however, by friends of the industrialists.

HARTKE HOWLS: The normally amiable Sen. Vance Hartke, D.-Ind., howled with indignation over our report that his daughter Sandra had found employment with a union and and insurance company that benefited from the senator's votes.

Her employers, we also reported, were remarkably tolerant. They allowed her to work only when she felt like it, and sometimes mailed her paychecks to her home.

Hartke responded that his opponents, "by damn," had better "leave my children out of it." It wasn't easy for Sandra, he said, "being Sen. Vance Hartke's daughter."

It wasn't Sandra but the senator whose conduct we were questioning. He voted down the line for legislation endorsed by the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks at the same time that his daughter was on the union payroll.

The union let her off, with pay, to campaign for her father six years ago. Confidential union records show that she missed work 110 days from January through November, 1970.

She claimed 52 days sick leave, and our sources confirm she had some legitimate medical problems. But she also took off an additional 58 days during the height of the campaign from June through November. Sandra has acknowledged that she spent some of this time in Indiana helping to re-elect her father. Under union rules, she was entitled to only 17 days sick time and 10 days vacation time. Yet the union paid her for the entire 110 days. Not until after the November election did the union threaten to dock her pay.

It is also clear from the confidential records that the union vigorously supported Hartke in the campaign. As one memo puts it, "Winning this election will depend largely on our ability to convince an informed electorate that Vance Hartke should be returned to the Senate."

In 1971, Sandra found a better job with the Travelers Insurance Company. But again, she was permitted to spend most of her time attending to personal interests. Hartke also happens to be a power on the Senate Commerce Committee which has jurisdiction over insurance matters.

Footnote: In his attack on us, the senator stated that our story "was first used in the 1970 ... campaign." The confidential memos in our possession hadn't been made public previously. In fact, Sandra didn't even go to work for Travelers until the year after the 1970 campaign.

Mother's advice to the contrary, 100 strokes of the hairbrush each night may do your crowning glory more harm than good. A national magazine says that vigorous massage, rough toweling and vigorous brushing or combing of hair may actually accelerate its loss. Since neither the scalp nor hair roots need it, better to shampoo and dry gently.

Can relaxation exercises help control blood pressure? Citing a recent medical study, the October Family Circle reports on 14 young hypertensive men at the University of California and V.A. Hospital, San Diego. The men were told to find comfortable chairs in quiet locations, loosen clothing, sit upright, relax muscles and silently count their breaths for 10 or 15 minutes, twice daily. After six months, the men had significantly lower mean pressures than a comparable group of non-exercisers.

A personal tragedy elicits a warning

Dear Readers: Please forgive this personal reference but I must share with you, my millions of friends, what is on my mind and in my heart.

A few weeks ago, our family gathered in Omaha to bury one of the dearest, most gentle people I have ever known. He was David Brodkey, married for 43 years to our eldest sister, Helen.

Dave was a delight. We adored him. He was meticulous about detail, the perfect choice to take charge of any family project. Dependable. Industrious. Thorough. "Integrity" was his middle name.

Dave cherished Helen, and well he might. She was a devoted wife, the beauty of the family, a talented pianist, a superb cook, and a leader in community affairs.

But Dave, The Perfectionist, the man who did everything right, did ONE thing wrong. He smoked at least two packs of cigarets every day for 30 years. This senseless addiction deprived him of the joy of seeing his grandchildren marry. And it will deny those who loved him of the pleasure of his beautiful presence.

So often I have heard smokers say, "Well, you have to die d-from something." True. But please, friends, if you can help it, die from something else -- and don't rush the event. Lung cancer is a horrible way to go. While non-smokers, too, die from lung cancer, the evidence is irrefutable -- cigaret smoking does cause lung cancer. The more we study it, the more certain we become. Smokers are the leading candidates for this dreaded disease -- and heart trouble and emphysema as well.

One out of every four Americans alive today will have some form of cander during his lifetime. One out of six people who get cancer will die from it -- unless, of course, we learn more about how to prevent this scourge and how to cure it.

The economic cost of cancer in our country is $10 billion a year, to say nothing of the agnoy and suffering. The life of every person who reads this column has been touched in some way by cancer. It is the second biggest killer in the United States.

Almost the last words Dave uttered to his wife were these: "I should have listened to you years ago when you begged me to stop smoking." But like so many others, Dave believed cancer happens to other people.

And now, all you wives who are nagging your husbands, and all you husbands who are pleading with your wives to throw away those filthy killers -- and all you young people who are turning your healthy pink lungs into tar pits at 65 cents a pack, for god's sake, for the sake of those who love you, STOP SMOKING TODAY. Do it for yourself. Do it for the people who care about you. And if you want to do something for me today please send a contribution -- even a single dollar bill will help. The address: David Brodkey Cancer Fund, Box 4141, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Your contributions will be spent on medical research and educational material to combat the glamorous image of smoking promoted by the tobacco industry.

We CAN conquer cancer in our lifetime if enough people will join hand in this effort. Thank you so much and God bless. -- Ann Landers

Female resistance to heart disease still good despite pressures of work

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The social stress of a daily job, long thought to be responsible for the susceptibility of men to heart disease, has not had the same effect on women, says an expert in coronary medicine.

Dr. William Hazzard, a researcher at the University of Washington, told a symposium of the American Heart Association Wednesday that although more and more women are facing the pressures of the working world, they still have a "remarkable resistance to coronary disease" and now outlive men longer than ever.

The new evidence has left researchers baffled about female resistance to coronary disease.

Hazzard said another popular theory, that the female hormone estrogen helped combat heart disease, has recently been discounted.

"For a while, we were even giving estrogen to men in hopes of preventing a second heart attack. It didn't work," he said.

Aside from old age, being male is the biggest contributing factor to heart disease in Western societies, Hazzard said.

Men are four times as likely as women to suffer heart disease in middle age as women, he said. The longevity gap between the sexes — an American woman's average life span is now 76, compared with 68 for men — is ever-widening.

It had been widely believed among scientists that males in industrialized nations were subjected to more socioeconomic stress than women were, and were therefore more prone to heart ailments.

Hazzard said scientists believed that one solution might be "to ease some of the sociological factors and put less emphasis on all the machismo jazz."

But many women have now entered the anxiety-ridden world of business, Hazzard said, and there is no evidence they are any more susceptible to heart disease than they ever were.

In fact, he added, when heart disease rates began to decline in the last few years, the decline among women was much more dramatic than among men.

Blanton says elections commission director resigns over budget issues

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Elections Commission Chairman David Blanton says differences over a budget led to Anne E. Forry's decision to resign as commission executive director.

Ms. Forry'f resignation is effective today, just six months after taking the job.

She said she based her decision on "administrative questions and issues," but would not say specifically what led to the resignation.

Ms. Forry said a decision she objected to was made at a closed meeting of the commission Friday and Saturday, and that she resigned as a result of that decision. Blanton said the closed session dealt with "internal operations and budgetary matters."

"I'm resigning because eight months ago when I first interviewed for this job I told the commission that the job of the executive director was to carry out the duties of the commission, and that if the commission made a decision I could not carry out, I would resign. Last Saturday they made a decision that I wouldn't carry out and I had to resign," she said.

The Washington University law school graduate would not talk about the commission's decision, saying it was not as important as her decision to resign.

"If at any time I think the public should know, I'll talk about it," she said.

The resignation is the second of an executive director since the commission began its operations in 1975. Al Kemp Jr., the commission's first choice for the post, resigned last March saying the legislature had not adequately financed the commission, which enforces the state's Campaign Finance and Disclosure law.

He is now the Republican candidate for state treasruer.

The commission's legal counsel, Jack Pletz, was appointed acting executive director until a permanent successor to Ms. Forry could be selected.

The refuge attracts people, too. Canoeists dip their paddles in its many miles of waterways. Fishermen angle for crappie and bass. Photographers record Mingo's different faces through the seasons, and children delight in discovering Jack-in-the-pulpit plants along a nature trail.

The new visitor center will further serve people. The refuge staff has designed the center's exhibits to reflect the exotic features of Mingo Swamp's interior -- plants and animals seldom found in other parts of Missouri. Deaton Museum Studios of Newton, Iowa, a firm which has done extensive work for the Smithsonian Institute and the National Park Service, has prepared many of the displays, including a three-dimensional diorama of Mingo Swamp.

Mingo National Wildlife Refuge lies within easy driving distance of both St. Louis and Memphis, from Interstate 55. The airport at Cape Girardeau is a 45-minute drive east of the refuge.

More than 500 visitors are expected to attend the dedication ceremony. Hundreds more will be out on refuge roads and trails sampling autumn amidst the splendor of Mingo's hardwood forests.

A number of other charges are pending against Brooks as the result of a high-speed chase and exchange of gunfire last November in St. Francois County.

During that incident, police said, he wrecked a state Highway Patrol car by stopping his own vehicle over a blind ridge on Possum Hollow road, causing a pursuing trooper to run into the rear of it. He later fled into the woods after trading shots with two county sheriff's deputies.

Accident brings 3-state traffic delay

CAIRO, Ill. — A truck loaded with frozen waffles caused a massive tie-up in tri-state traffic Wednesday morning when it apparently hit the guardrails of the Ohio River bridge and overturned.

The driver of the truck is listed in satisfactory condition by the Western Baptist Hospital at Paducah, Ky., where he was taken by ambulance, with what police termed serious injuries.

The accident happened at about 3 a.m. Billy Joe Carlton, 34, of rural Trenton, Tenn. was driving the semi toward Cairo and apparently hit the bridge guardrails at a curve near the Kentucky approach.

Kentucky Department of Transportation officials said about 100 to 150 feet of the guardrail and some of the curbing was damaged.

When the truck turned over, it completely blocked traffic on the bridge, but by about 9:30 workers at the scene had managed to move the truck over enough to allow one-way traffice.

At one point, traffic was backed all the way to Wickliffe, Ky., on Highway 60-51 from the bridge, to the south edge of Cairo in Illinois and the northbound lane of traffic on the Mississippi River bridge from Missouri to Cairo was backed as far as one could see. However, the Missouri Highway Patrol said there was no traffic backup on the Missouri side of the river.

Where possible, drivers were detoured from Cairo north on 37 to 169 near Karnak and then to 45 and south on 45 to I-24 and across the bridge to highway 60 west of Paducah, Ky. Another alternate route for southbound Illinois drivers was across the Mississippi River bridge into Missouri then to State Route 77 south from Wyatt, Mo., to State Route 80 to a ferry crossing at Columbus, Ky.

Scores of Kentucky residents who work at Cairo were either delayed or prevented from getting to work because of the tieup, as were Illinois residents who work in Kentucky.

Illinois State Police were on the scene at the traffic lights on the Cairo side of the bridge directing traffic and Kentucky state troopers were directing traffic from the Wickliffe side.

SW Bell may face reduced revenues

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. operations in Missouri "would be hamstrung," if the state Public Service Commission agreed to its staff recommendation of reduced revenues in a pending rate case, according to Ray Shockley, the firm's vice president.

The St. Louis-based utility has asked the PSC for $71.7 million increase in gross annual revenues, but the commission staff has advised that only $15 million be provided the firm.

During questioning by company attorney Jack Lorenz, Shockley said the recommendations were not realistic.

"Our company's labor costs alone have risen some $32 million in the period 1975-1976, the period since our last rate case," Shockley said. "The staff's recommended rate relief woulnd't cover those costs and certainly woulnd't enable the company to recover other higher operating costs driven up by inflation."

Shockley, who is responsible for Bell's Missouri operations, said the company requires a return of about 9.5 per cent on its Missouri investment to protect its credit rating and continue to attract investors.

"Presently, our return is at the unacceptable level of 6.65 per cent on a test-period adjusted basis," he said. The staff's recommendation calls for the company to receive a rate of return in the range of 8 per cent.

The vice president's testimony came during the third day of formal hearings on Bell's rate increase request.

If approved, the increase would raise the monthly rates of the average residential or business customer by about 15 per cent.

The company also proposes a 20-cent charge on direntory assistance calls if a customer makes more than three calls per month to directory assistance within his home area code.

The firm is also asking for an increase in installation charges raising the fee for a typical residential installation from $24 to $44,and for a typical business from $45 to $66.

The utility serves 1.3 million customers throughout Missouri.

Shockley told the commission that Southwestern has been trying to maintain service while reducing operating costs through labor-saving, technological changes.

won final congressional action when the House approved a three-year, $4.8-billion extension of programs to help regions with high unemployment.

CIVIL RIGHTS

The Senate approved and sent to the House a bill that supporters say will help citizens enforce their civil rights. The measure would permit courts to order losing defendants to pay attorneys fees to private citizens who bring successful suits to enforce their civil rights. The measure also says courts may award attorney's fees to taxpayers who prevail in civil suits brought against them by the Internal Revenue Service.

SWAMPS AND DUNES

Final congressional action was given to a 3,662-acre expansion of the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore along Lake Michigan and to plans to create the Congaree Swamp National Monument in South Carolina. Both bills now go to President Ford.

Pay increase to be given to employes

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated 2.6 million federal civilian and military employes will be getting a pay increase beginning Friday that averages 4.83 per cent and is worth about $2.5 billion.

But labor spokesmen say it's not enough and it will cost votes for President Ford, who approved the pay hike Wednesday.

Ford ignored appeals for a greater increase that was recommeded by his government pay advisers.

The AFL-CIO's public employe department predicted that Ford's action will "dangerously accelerate the great employe unrest" among federal workers at all levels. Department president Howard McClennan said the decision "further demonstrates the Ford administration's callous disregard for federal service employes."

Shuford is selected for post in electric rate reform group

CHAFFEE — W. L. Shuford of Chaffee has been selected as Scott County finance chairman for the Citizens For Reformed Electric Rates.

"We know we cannot outspend the huge power companies and banks supporting them," Shuford said, "but we can get enough money together to buy some radio time to urge people of Scott County to vote 'yes' on Proposition One (in the Nov. 2 general election)."

Shuford said he is taking an active part in order to do his part to stop inflation. He believes it is unfair for the Missouri Public Service Commission to allow power companies to add a charge to current electric bills for something they may never live to use.

"The only opposition to Proposition One is coming from the big bankers and big power companies who will be the ones to profit most from this billion-dollar bonanza," Shuford said. "We need to get a yes vote on Proposition One and I know we can do it."

Experts say Missouri needs better radiation safeguards

By LAURA PATRICK
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Several radiation experts would like to replace federal monitoring of Missouri's nuclear installations with a state system, which they say would provide closer checks on both routine problems and unexpected emergencies.

Portions of the proposed Missouri Radiation Protection Act, under study by a select House committee, would help close gaps caused by federal regulation of nuclear materials, they say.

James L. Wilson, director of the state Department of Natural Resources, said state controls should supplant federal regulation of transportation, manufacture and storage of radioactive materials within Missouri.

Users and manufacturers of radioactive materials within the state presently are licensed and monitored by the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The proposed state act would allow the state to enter "agreement status" with the federal commission and as a result, assume almost 80 per cent of the federal licensing and inspection program in Missouri.

Wilson emphasized the importance of the state licensing portions of the proposed act because "it returns to the state a certain serious and important authority now held by the federal government."

Ken Karch, director of the state Division of Environmental Quality spoke of the need for greater training for emergency response to possible radiation hazards. Under present regulation, Karch said Missouri is "not prepared to respond to a radiological emergency."

The state's Atomic Energy Commission has adopted a radiation response plan for such emergencies and has filed it with the adjutant general's office. But Karch said the plan has only half the elements it needs to be effective.

Missouri has enough money and personnel to handle an emergency, Karch said, but only one-half of the persons involved in the plan have a clear understanding of their responsibilities. No one has a proscribed procedure to follow.

"We don't have clear cut responsibilities in each agency," Karch said.

Examples of what Missouri needs to make the plan work, Karch said, are:

—Up-to-date telephone numbers for rapid communication when a problem is detected;

—Pre-prepared press releases so the press immediately can notify the public of where the problem is located;

—Several persons to call and notify so that a "fail safe" system of communication will be in operation;

—Periodic testing of the plan to insure that it will work.

The state highway patrol cannot supervise decontamination efforts but is "properly trained and equipped to handle the preliminary problems," such as traffic and crowd control in a radiological emergency, patrol Trooper Herbert W. Watchinski said.

Patrol Major W. A. Dolen said it is "difficult to determine how much nuclear material is being transported" along state highways, but said he favors state control of routes used in the transportation of radioactive materials.

Charles Mayer, head of the nuclear transportation division of the Tri-State Motor Transit Co., Joplin, criticized proposals for route control. "Highway routing is burdensome and ineffectual," he said. "The problem is that present federal regulations don't discriminate as to who can transport radioactive material and who can't."

Mayer said his company favors tougher federal licensing regulations but is concerned about "uniformity" if states enact different types of regulations for carriers. Mayer's company transports nuclear material in several states.

Frank Colmer, a health physicist at Menorah Medical Center in St. Louis, said there is an "urgent need to upgrade the surveillance of radioactive equipment in hospitals, particularly those in outstate areas."

Ninety per cent of the radiation exposure to individuals comes from X-rays and radiological treatment, Colmer said.

Most persons who take X-rays in a physician's office are not qualified for the work, Colmer said. Over-exposure can be caused by using levels higher than necessary for a clear X-ray. "Re-takes" due to careless or improperly located first exposures also needlessly increase exposure to radiation, he said.

Colmer said all operators of X-ray equipment should be tested and certified by the state.

Larger urban hospitals make regular checks of their radioactive equipment, but smaller ones in rural areas often don't comply with federal standards, Colmer said.

"They just don't see the people of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission often enough to know what they're doing wrong," he said.

Thoughts
From The Living Bible

Now, in Mid-September, all the people assembled at the plaza in front of the Water Gate and requested Ezra, their religious leader, to read to them the law of God which he had given to Moses. So Ezra the priest brought out to them the scroll of Moses' laws. He stood on a wooden stand so that everyone could see him as he read. He read from early morning until noon. Everyone stood up as he opened the scroll. And all paid close attention.

Two FBI agents were rushing to the scene of a reported bank robbery on Wilshire Boulevard Monday morning when they saw Bailey's bike hanging out the back end of a taxicab, said Police Sgt. Ronald Bear.

Employes at Los Angeles Federal Savings and Loan had reported that their masked bandit escaped westbound pedaling a 10-speed bike and carrying $4,065 of their money.

Bailey, 27, of Los Angeles, hailed a cab not far from the bank and put his bike in the trunk, Bear said.

When they arrested him, the FBI agents also took as evidence a Halloween mask and a pellet gun, the sergeant added. He was booked by police for investigation of robbery.

Mark V to debut in '77

Lincoln-Mercury Division's new 1977 Mark V will debut Friday at Sikeston Motor Co., dealership president Clint Elledge said today.

"The all-new, prestigious Mark V combines the ultimate in elegance with added engineering advances to guarantee its dominant position in the American luxury-car market," Elledge said. "We expect to continue the record initiated by its predecessor, Mark IV, which in the 1976 model year outsold its major competitor by 5,200 units.

"New-car buyer research shows styling is the most important factor in the personal luxury-car market," Elledge said, "and the distinctive, yet classic styling of the Mark V should satisfy the demands of the more discriminating buyer attracted to this segment of the market."

Mark V's exterior styling results in a more sculptured appearance than the Mark IV. Trendsetting Mark styling features such as the traditional verticle grille, opera windows and Continental-style rear-deck lid are retained. New for 1977 are three louvers, located behind the front wheel openings, which not only heighten the car's singularity, but also reduce engine-compartment heat.

Elledge said the popular Designer Series is continued in 1977. Internationally known designers Bill Blass, Hubert de Givenchy, Emilio Pucci and Cartier again have selected color and trim combinations to reflect their individuality. In 1976, the Designer Series accounted for more than one-fourth of all Mark IV sales.

Interiors of the Mark V feature standard seats in a new pleated design of Ultravelour fabirc. Optional fabrics include the cashmere-like Majestic velour and a new woven-appearance Romano velour. Rich, handcrafted leather is available in all interior colors. The revised instrument-panel cluster features high-gloss walnut woodgrain applique and new lenses with a cut-crystal appearance. A new Cartier day-date clock has a higly accurate quartz crystal movement.

New options for Mark V include an Illuminated Entry System, a heated, outside left-hand mirror that is part of a defroster group, a CB (citizen 's band) radio with power antenna and new Turbine-Styled aluminum wheels.

Mark V is equipped with a standard 400-cubic-inch-displacement-2V engine that has been modified to improve driveability and performance. Both the 400-2V and the optional 460-CID-4V engine feature the company's improved second-generation DuraSpark electronic ignition.

Standard for 1977 are four-wheel disc brakes, Twin Comfort seats with six-way power for the driver, Automatic Temperature Control air conditioning with a driver-controlled fan, and an AM-FM radio with four speakers and power antenna.

"Our Mark V is a luxury car in every sense of the term," Elledge said. "When you consider the highly successful sales year Mark IV enjoyed in 1976, plus the impetus this exciting new Mark V will provide, you can understand my optimism over the 1977 sales prospects."

Atkinson joins Indian center

SPRINGFIELD — Bob Atkinson Jr., a former Sikeston resident, has been named director of the Southwest Missouri Indian Center, 325 E.. Grand.

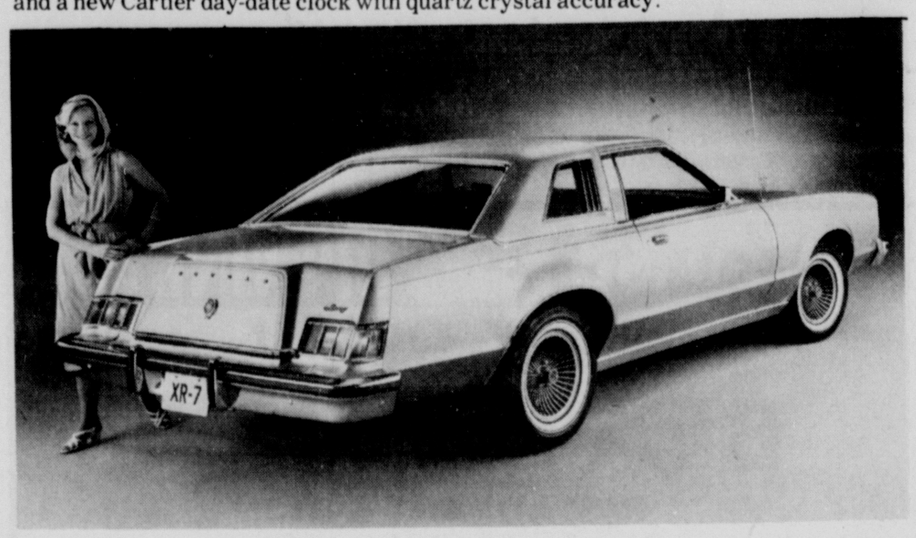

Atkinson graduated from Sikeston High School, and is the son of Ruth Atkinson of 418 Greer St., Sikeston, and the late Bob Atkinson Sr.

Atkinson requests all Indian families in the southeast Missouri area to write him at the Southwest Missouri Indian Center if they are interested in furthering their education or developing a skill, as the center has funds available to assist Indians in these fields.

1977 Continental Mark V

Continental Mark V, the latest generation in a dynasty of custom- crafted luxury cars, succeeds the Mark IV in 1977. More angular and rakish than its predecessor, the Mark V retains the traditional Mark grille and Continental rear spare tire deck lid, but adds styling touches such as functional front fenders louvers. Although about the same size as the Mark IV, the Mark V will be nearly 400 pounds lighter. A 400-CID 2V engine will be standard with the 460-CID 4V engine optional everywhere except California. A new standard interior includes Twin-Comfort Lounge seats trimmed in a new soft velour fabric, a new instrument panel cluster with a high- gloss, woodgrain applique and a new Cartier day-date clock with quartz crystal accuracy.

1977 Cougar XR-7

The completely new 1977 Cougar XR-7 will feature bold styling and an efficient, comfortable interior. For the first time, the Cougar nameplate also will encompass an entire family of cars, including two-and four-door and station wagon models. All Cougars will feature the same bright, vertical-theme grille and dual rectangular headlamps. The XR-7 will be distinguished by its own wraparound taillights and a sculptured deck lid akin to that of the Mark V. A 302-CID 2V engine and automatic transmission will be standard on the Cougar XR-7.

The look of Cougar for '77

The seven models of Lincoln-Mercury Division's redesigned 1977 Cougar lineup will be publicly introduced Friday at Sikeston Motor Co., dealershiip president Clint Elledge said today.

"In 1977 -- for the first time -- the excitement and styling flair associated with Cougar in the past will be available in a full line of cars, from the sporty Cougar XR-7 to the family-sized, four-door base Cougar," Elledge said.

"The Cougar XR-7, which retains its own distinct styling touches, is highly responsive and fun to drive.

"The Cougar and Cougar Brougham two- and four-door models will offer first-class family transportation in a comfortable, six-person package.

"And, for the first time, the Cougar nameplate will be available on a station wagon incorporating some of the styling excitement and responsive handling that has made Cougar the most popular mid-sized car in Lincoln-Mercury history."

Elledge said all 1977 Cougars feature new exterior sheet-metal. The front is highlighted by a vertical "swing-away" grille and dueal rectangular headlights. Cougar and Cougar Brougham models have vertical taillamps with integral side markers. Cougar XR-7 is distinguished by such features as a sculptured rear-deck lid, louvered opera windows and wraparound taillamps.

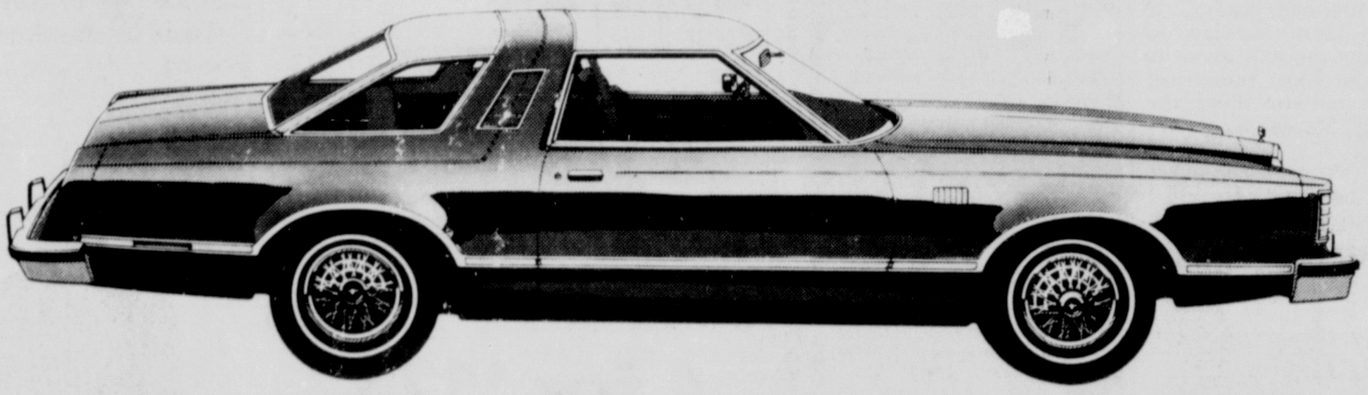

Interiors on all models include a new instrument-panel design and new door trim. Cougar XR-7 features a full-length door arm rest. Four new interior colors are available and cloth and vinyl seat trims have been revised. A decor option with special interior and exterior appointments is available in the XR-7 and Brougham models.

Handling characteristics of the XR-7 are improved with the refinement of ride components and the addition of a rear stabilizer bar and standard 15-inch wheels.

Standard in the XR-7 and all Cougar hardtops and sedans is the 302-cubic-inch-displacement engine which is smaller and ligher than the 351-CID engine standard a year ago. The bigger engine remains standard on station wagon models.

Dodge Monaco to be available in two sizes

Dodge's top-of-the-line nameplate is available in two size classes in 1977. Full-sized Royal Monacos are complemented by smaller, more efficient intermediate-sized Monacos.

The combination provides a selection of 15 models, all with the road handling, comfort and luxury options associated with the line's flagship.

Royal Monacos are available in two price levels -- Royal Monaco and Royal Monaco Brougham -- providing fully competitive, no-compromise full-sized cars. Royal Monaco Brougham continues to offer the standard luxury features top-of-the-line buyers expect.

'77 2 door Monaco

Both models retain a luxury front end appearance distinguished by hidden headlights and a handsomely detailed grille.

The classic design emphasizes that full six-passenger seating, a smooth quiet ride, generous luggage space, luxury options and the security and comfort of a big car are uncompromised in 1977.

The seven-model lineup includes a two-door hardtop and a four-door sedan at both price levels on a 121-inch wheelbase. All full-sized wagons have a 124-inch wheelbase. A two-seat station wagon is available at both levels. The Brougham series also includes a three-seat wagon.

Standard equipment for both Royal Monaco and Royal Monaco Brougham includes automatic transmission, power brakes, power steering, color-keyed carpeting, inside hood release, drip and upper door frame moldings, and lighter, quieter, glass-belted radial tiers. Steel-belted radials are standard for all wagons and available for all other models. Royal Monaco Brougham wagons have woodgrain body sides, heavy duty shock absorbers and air deflector, standard.

Intermediate-sized Monacos provide an excellent alternative for the more economy-minded driver accustomed to the comfort and features of full-sized cars.

They are distinguished by new vertically stacked, rectangular headlamps and a distinctive new grille with the Dodge name molded into it. The grille has a horizontal design with a vertical mid-bar separation. Its centerline has a matching body color tape applique.

Park and turn lamps are located in the bumpers and turn indicators on the top of the fenders are optional. Sedan tail lights have a tricolor design consisting of a red stoplight-tail lamp, an amber turnsignal lamp and a clear backup lamp.

A distinctive wraparound design is used for the hardtop tail light. It has a new chrome-plated plastic housing with a new all-red tail lamp lens set into an injection molded nylon quarter end cap.

Mid-sized Monacos are available in two price classes -- Monaco and Monaco Brougham -- in a total of eight models. Each line offers a hardtop on a 115-inch wheelbase, and four-door sedan and two- and three-seat station wagons on a 117.4-inch wheelbase. The premium wagons are designated Monaco Crestwood.

All Monaco and Monaco Brougham models have poere brakes, front and rear bumper guards, forced upper air ventilation, color-keyed carpeting, day-night mirror and fiber glass, belted, radial ply tiers as standard equipment.

The wagons also have simulated woodgrain doorgate panel trim, cargo area carpet, three-way doorgate, power-steering and a full sound isolation package as standard.

A column-mounted three-speed manual transmission is standard on all Monaco and Monaco Brougham hardtops and sedans. A TorqueFlite automatic transmission is standard on wagons and optional on hardtops and sedans.

Dodge Monaco '77

State Board of Education adopts $663 million budget

JEFFERSON CITY — The financial problems of local schools were the basic concern of the State Board of Education as it adopted a 1977-78 budget request of more than $663 million at its September meeting.

Of the $663 million total, more than 99 per cent would go to the local schools and-or for the training of the handicapped.

Approximately $158.2 million of the budget request would come from federal funds.

The request represents an increase of about $53.6 million over current year funding. Of this, more than $27 million would go into the School Foundation Program, bringing this total to $456 million.

Approximately $18 million of the increase would go for expanded federal programs, including food services, adult basic education, vocational programs and expected increases of Title I (educationally deprived children) funding.

"The preparation of this budget has been difficult," said Commissioner of Education Arthur L. Mallory. "Keeping in mind that there are great pressures on the state's financial resources, we've also had to be aware that many school districts are now in deficit spending and that their financial problems, particularly with inflation, are becoming increasingly severe. To strike an appropriate balance between resources and local needs has been and continues to be the major challenge.

"In the final analysis," Mallory added, "we had to think of the student in the classroom. Under no manageable circumstances can we permit instructional programs to deteriorate. We must, at the least, maintain current standards and that, primarily, dictated the increased request."

Mallory noted that despite increases in the School Foundation Program in recent years, the state's share (on a percentage basis) of the total annual cost of educating a public school student has declined. For example, in 1972-73, the total cost was $888 per student. Of this, the state provided 41.9 per cent. This year, the total cost is estimated at $1,331 and the state's share is expected to be 37.7 per cent.

Two major budget areas to receive careful consideration by the State Board were special (handicapped) education and vocational education.

The approved budget request calls for the expenditure of $63.3 million for handicapped programs. Of this, more than $9 million would be in federal funds, more than $39 million from the Foundation Program and more than $13.7 million for operation of the School for the Blind at St. Louis, the School for the Deaf at Fulton and the 65 state schools for the severely handicapped.

In addition, the board approved a construction request of about $5.5 million for 10 additional schools for the severely handicapped. The priority locations of these schools are: Poplar Bluff, Sedalia, Rolla Marshall, Harrisonville, Jefferson City, Doniphan, Marshfield, Flat River and Potosi.

The vocational education operations request totals more than $37.7 million, of which about $17.5 million would be in federal funds. Requested is an increase of $1.5 million in state funds to develop 212 new or expanding vocational programs.

In addition, $1.37 million in federal revenue sharing funds were requested for the construction of four new area vocational schools. These would be located at Columbia, Independence (Fort Osage District), Joplin and Washington, Mo.

—Approved an increase in the cost of the high school equivalency examination from $6 to $7.50. The money will go to the local testing centers.

—Reviewed standards developed by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education for use by local school districts in evaluating their reading programs.

—Reviewed a screening program known as the "Missouri Kindergarten Inventory of Developmental Skills." The inventory was developed at the request of local school districts. It will be used by kindergarten teachers to develop appropriate programs for the individual child.

The next meeting of the State Board of Education is scheduled Oct. 18 and 19 at Jefferson City.

Gura's shutout clinches tie for K.C.

OAKLAND (AP) — The Kansas City Royals are home today, in the city Charles O. Finley deserted eight years ago, preparing for a pennant-clinching party.

"You could say an era is over," said Gene Tenace of the Oakland A's after Wednesday night's 4-0 Royals' victory over the Finley-owned team which has won five straight American League West titles and claimed baseball world championships in 1972-73-74.

"We're lifted up right now and I hope we stay up this weekend," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog, whose team had lost six of seven games before Wednesday night.

The A's had won five of six, charging within reach of the leaders.

"We haven't ended it yet, but we're comfortable now," said the Royals' John Mayberry.

Herzog went to his bullpen for a starting pitcher and got a four-hit shutout from Larry Gura, 4-0, while Amos Otis drove in two runs with a homer and double in his first game since a two-day stay on the bench.

One victory over the Minnesota's Twins in the final three-game series of the regular season will clinch the title. The series opens Friday night in Royals Stadium.

The Royals, with a 3½-game lead, also can uncork the champagne if the A's, moved to the West Coast from Kansas City by owner Finley in 1968, lose one of their four remaining games. Oakland faces Frank Tanana, the California Angels' 18-game winner, Friday night.

In other games Wednesday, the New York Yankees downed the Boston Red Sox 9-6, the Milwaukee Brewers topped the Baltimore Orioles 6-3, the Minnesota Twins defeated the Texas Rangers 9-1, the Cleveland Indians turned back the Detroit Tigers 3-2 and the California Angels blanked the Chicago White Sox 3-0.

Forb's perfect night has Chief and T-Bone in awe

After four years of wallowing in mediocrity as a prognosticator, the Daily Standard's fabulous Forb finally did it. What, you ask? Last week Bold Forb picked eight games correct out of eight tries for his first ever perfect night. The "Old Gladiator" hasn't made any friends with his false attempts at modesty, like...

To Chief and T-Bone: "Gee, I couldn't have done it without you guys. You had to miss at least one or my perfecto wouldn't have meant as much."

Stan "T-Bone" Hall was good on seven of the eight and the Chief was right six times, but everything pales when compared to perfection (according to Forb).

Are two perfect weeks in a row possible? Forb hedges, "Well, I don't know."

"There are a couple tough ones this week..."

CHIEF: Tilghman by 16.
FORB: Tilghman by 14.
T-BONE: Cape by 3.

CHARLESTON AT PERRYVILLE--With the up-again, down-again play of the Pirates, who knows? The odds are that Charleston won't score much, giving Perryville a decided edge.

CHIEF: Perryville by 19.
FORB: Perryville by 10.
T-BONE: Perryville by 7.

JACKSON AT POPLAR BLUFF--Without a doubt the game of the night. People in those two cities swear that this is the battle for the Northern title, although the Bulldogs figure they will have a say about that. Forb goes with the upset by coach Paul Webber's Indians. T-Bone says the only reason he went with Bluff is that, "they're at home."

CHIEF: Poplar Bluff by 2.
FORB: Jackson by 1.
T-BONE: Poplar Bluff by 7.

KENNETT AT PARAGOULD, ARKANSAS--Little is known about the Arkansas team, but Kennett has shown enough to make the panel go 100 percent with the home team.

CHIEF: Paragould by 7.
FORB: Paragould by 5.
T-BONE: Paragould by 8.

CARUTHERSVILLE AT EAST PRAIRIE--It may finally be time for the Danny Johnson express to grind to a halt. The Tigers haven't allowed a point yet and, although they admittedly haven't faced any strong teams, they figure to win this one handily...if they can stop the one-man army in the Eagle backfield.

CHIEF: Caruthersville by 15.
FORB: Caruthersville by 18.
T-BONE: Caruthersville by 13.

CHAFFEE AT ILLMO-SCOTT CITY--The Rams may slow the Chaffee offense down, but they don't figure to do enough scoring of their own to beat the high-flying Devils.

CHIEF: Chaffee by 12.
FORB: Chaffee by 13.
T-BONE: Chaffee by 13.

SOUTH PEMISCOT AT MALDEN--"They'll probably run the score up like everybody else," says T-Bone about the Malden Greenwave. "A big score would make their record more impressive. But, somebody needs to cut South Pem some slack."

CHIEF: Malden by 7.
FORB: Malden by 19.
T-BONE: Malden by 21.

DONIPHAN AT PORTAGEVILLE--Portageville has a tremendous defense and, despite last week's loss to Chaffee, may yet be in the race for the Southern title before it's all over. The Dons don't have much hope.

CHIEF: Portageville by 21.
FORB: Portageville by 27.
T-BONE: Portageville by 18.

DEXTER AT SIKESTON--"Bombs away," says the panel about this one. If the Bulldog defense is for real, this will be a true test for it. Dexter shouldn't beat Sikeston no matter what. But, it will be interesting to see how close they can make it.

CHIEF: Sikeston by 20.
FORB: Sikeston by 21.
T-BONE: Sikeston by 13.

On the year our terrible trio show marks that are improving. Forb is hitting at an 81.2 per cent rate. T-Bone stands at 78.8 and the Chief brings up the rear at 71.2 per cent. In defense of our fearless leader, however, it must be pointed out that he nailed two games right on the head last week: Chief said Jackson would win by 30 (30-0 final score) and Sikeston would win by eight. They did, 14-6. Uncanny.

On the whole our panel averaged picking within a touchdown on each of the eight games last week. Look out, Major Hoople!

TRCC to host cage clinic

The sixth annual Three Rivers Community College Basketball Coaching Clinic will be held at the Poplar Bluff Senior High Gym on October 2, 1976. Registration will start at 8:30 a.m. and the speakers session will begin at 9:00.

Gary Wacker from St. Charles High School, Ronnie Cookson, Scott County Central High, and Paul Hale from Delta High School will be visiting high school coaches who will speak.

Wacker's St. Charles team has made five consecutive trips to the Missouri State Tournament and finished third this year. Wacker has a winning record of over 75 per cent with 194 wins against only 63 losses and will speak on his full court press defense.

Cookson has been at Scott Central for six years and his teams have amassed a record of 128 wins against only 36 losses. Cookson's teams have played in the finals at the regional tournament five of the six years since he has been at Scott Central and he has won twice. This past year his team won the state tournament and Cookson was selected Coach of the Year for the second time in Southeast Missouri Area.

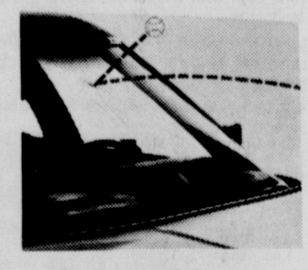

Paul Hale is a TRCC alumni coming back to speak after having a successful coaching debut at Stoutland and Delta High School. His Delta team this year won its regional tournament and advanced to state play. Paul played on the 1971 Raiders team the finished fourth in the N.J.C.A.A. National Tournament. Paul will speak on team defense.

The other speaker on the clinic will be Roger Pattille, Assistant Basketball Coach at TRCC. Roger will speak on the high school basketball recruit.

The tuition fee for the clinic is $5.00 and a noon luncheon will be provided along with door prizes.

Coach Gene Bess, Clinic Director, encourages anyone who would like to learn more about basketball coaching to attend. Any park department coach or other interested person would be welcome.

Cards' GM Devine gets two-year pact

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Spurred by inquiries from other clubs, the St. Louis Cardinal gave General Manager Bing Devine a new two-year contract Wednesday.

Devine's contract, which included a raise in pay, ended speculation he would be fired for the Cardinals' lacklustre performance this season.

In addition, the business end of Devine's job will henceforth be delegated to vice presidents Jim Toomey and Joe McShane.

"I've really gotten away from getting into the field as much as I used to," Devine noted.

In the past Devine has operated on a series of one-year contracts with August A. Busch Jr., the 77-year-old president of the Cardinals. He has served 14 years as general manager in two separate tours.

"We've had inquiries from other clubs on Devine's availability. And we thought it best to get him committed to the Cardinals," Busch said in explaining his action.

Devine, 59, served as general manager from 1957 through most of 1964 until Busch fired him just before the Cards began a late-stretch drive to clinch the National League pennant.

SLGA ends year with luncheon

The Sikeston Ladies Golf Association held their end of the season awards luncheon at the Country Club September 28. New officers were elected for the 1977 season.

Pat Jackovic was elected as president of the SLGA, with Barbara Hambrick being chosen to the vice-president's post. Glenda Buchanan was elected secretary, while Margaret Jarrell will be treasurer. Evelyn Warf was appointed as handicap chairman, with Jo Spitzmiller and Marlene Kruger serving as tournament chairmen.

Awards were presented for the winners in the Club Championship Tournament September 21 and 22. Mary Bain was the first place winner in the Championship Class, followed by Betty Dawson, Doris Stepp and Evelyn Howington. In Class A, Lucille Martin won first, with Margaret Jarrell placing second, Mickey Atchison third and Jo Spitzmiller fourth. Lou Dye was the winner in Class B, followed by Barbara Hambrick, Betty Mitchell and Pat Jackovic. Winners in Class C were Jeanette Lathom, Margaret Baker, Rosemary Littleton and Glenda Buchanan.

The Buckner-Ragsdale Award for the season's most improved golfer went to Connie Campagna. The Regina Meyer Awards for the lowest fifteen games of the year was won by Mary Bain. Margaret Jewell won the state medal, which goes to the lowest score minus handicap on the first day of the championship tournament.

'Count' tosses no- hitter

ATLANTA (AP) — "You gotta be good to throw a no-hitter in the big leagues. Well, this proves it, I'm good," proclaimed John Montefusco, the brash San Francisco Giants' right-hander after throwing his gem at the Atlanta Braves Wednesday night.

"I always dreamed about throwing a no-hitter, but I never thought I could. I can't believe it, I can't believe it," Montefusco said after the 9-0 triumph in which "The Count" came within a walk of a perfect game.

The 26-year-old native of Long Branch, N.J., was in command all the way as his teammates had nothing but routine chances before a slim turnout of 1,369 in Atlanta's final home contest of the season.

The only runner to reach base was Jerry Royster, who walked on a 3-1 count leading off the fourth inning.

"I was only trying to stop Willie from getting a hit. I didn't think I'd stop the whole team," said a smiling Montefusco. "Montanez is a hot dog like I am, only tonight I put a little mustard on it."

"He's a pretty good pitcher but sometimes he lets his mouth get in the way of his pitching," said Montanez.

Cardinals lose to Phillies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — All is not roses in baseball — not even on a division champion.

Wayne Twitchell of the Philadelphia Phillies brushed aside the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night and afterward made such a point obvious.

"If I don't pitch any more next year I won't be where I am," Twitchell declared after nailing down a 6-5 Phillies triumph in relief.

"I believe that I've pitched too well this year to go through what I have again," he added. "Let's look at it this way. How many clubs are there that don't need pitching?"

Twitchell, who is unsigned to a Philadelphia contract, was shuffled from a starting role to the bullpen this year when the Phils acquired Jim Kaat via a trade.

But little did the right-hander realize that the reassignment would curtail his pitching to 61 2-3 innings.

"I thought when the season started that relief might be the right kind of thing due to our type of ball club," Twitchell mused.

"If you look at it realistically, the reason I haven't pitched more is because our starters have done so well and all we've needed has been short relief."

Tug McGraw, 7-6, spelled Larry Christenson after Mike Schmidt's 38th home run propelled the Phillies to a 5-3 lead.

An eventual exit by McGraw was necessitated, however, when Jerry Mumphrey drilled a two-run single in the sixth that produced a 5-5 tie.

The 6-foot-6 Twitchell entered in the eighth following Jerry Martin's double off John Curtis, 6-11, to drive home the winning run.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a woman 51 years of age and have a little high blood pressure but have it under control. My big problem is my legs.

I sit all day sewing at a factory. The calves of my legs swell terribly. I have been to a number of doctors. No one knows what it is. Also the hamstrings above my knees hurt. My legs are very tight at night. I lie down 10 minutes and all the swelling leaves. What could it be? I don't drink milk. Am I low on calcium or vitamin C or iron? I am overweight.

If you could help me it would be a new life for me.

DEAR READER — I doubt it is a deficiency in your diet. And apparently you do not have varicose vein problems. Your history suggests that it is related to your sitting. This is an important point for many people.

When you sit with pressure against the back of the thighs and sometimes with added pressure at the edge of the seat of the chair, you press hard on the veins that drain the legs. The pressure can cause faulty emptying of the veins. It has been known to result in clots forming in the veins, for example, after long airplane flights with improper seating.

Your overweight problem may contribute to the condition. I would suggest that you pay particular attention to your seat and make sure it fits you so that the pressure is directly on your pelvic bones with little or no pressure on the muscular part of your thighs. Also get up regularly and stretch your legs. Anyone who has to sit long periods of time would be wise to follow the same advice.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate any information you could give me on hypoglycemia. Is it possible that a person would feel worse when first going on a hypoglycemia diet?

DEAR READER — Yes, you can feel worse. Particularly if you really don't have hypoglycemia. The diagnosis is made far too often in people who really have other problems, including anxiety, instead of hypoglycemia. I am afraid the diagnosis is often used as a wastebasket to label all sorts of ill defined complaints that appear to have no ready explanation.

The diagnosis should never be made unless it can be demonstrated that typical symptoms occur at the same time that a low blood glucose value is documented. Low blood sugar levels without symptoms during testing is not a satisfactory basis for the diagnosis. Symptoms, which could be caused by other things, without the low blood glucose reading cannot be used alone for a diagnosis.

Many hypoglycemia diets are low carbohydrate diets. The sharp reduction of carbohydrate intake to extremely low levels in normal people leads to loss of salt, water and chemical imbalance and may cause a person to feel tired, faint, or have a headache. If you don't have hypoglycemia and that is the diet you have been given — a so called high protein diet — that may be your problem.

What's the law?

Case of the puzzled reporter

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Norton was a newspaperman with a good nose for a good story. When he latched onto a heart-rending saga about a mother and her teen-age son's bout with drugs, however, it looked like perplexed Norton might have to pay through that same good nose.

While he wrote up the story in true and accurate fashion, clearly indicating that the names used were completely the product of his imagination, it just so happened that there really lived in the community a mother and her teen-age son with the very same names that Norton had arbitrarily chosen.

And, if that wasn't an eye-twitcher, Norton became a nervous wreck when they sued him for a bundle of money, claiming that he had defamed them.

"How could I have defamed them?" protested Norton in court. "I didn't even know they existed."

"That's irrelevant," was the answer. "His story identified us by name and what he identified us as was an outrage. Consequently, as good and upstanding citizens in our community, we're entitled to be paid for the harm he caused us."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make perplexed Norton pay damages for defaming the mother and her son?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge ruled, in effect, that since the mother and her son were well- regarded as good and upstanding citizens in their community, no person who read Norton's story could reasonably have believed that it applied to them, particularly when the story clearly contained a notice that the names used were fictitious.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Jose Reyes welcomed their seventh child, a daughter.

The following day, however, Reyes, a dishwasher at a restaurant, received an excited call from his wife at the hospital. Their new offspring wasn't a girl, but a boy. A nurse had apparently got her sexes mixed in making the initial report.

HOWARD C. TOOKE

Republican Candidate for
STATE SENATOR

Speaks out on UTILITIES RATES:

The current attitude seems to be that massive gas and electric rate increases are inevitable, and that customers should accept this situation and not object so much.
I have never agreed, with this; I believe we should object every chance we get.
The City of Cape Girardeau officially opposed the acquisition of Missouri Utilities Company by Union Electric Company. We lost, but at least we tried.
As Mayor of Cape Girardeau, I have been an active participant in several rate cases before the Public Service Commission.
This is the only place we can object, but it should not be necessary for cities or individuals to intervene in rate cases.
The state should intervene for its citizens!
More on this subject next week.

VOTE FOR A MAN WHO HAS OPPOSED GAS AND ELECTRIC RATE INCREASES!

Federal drought aid won't be widespread but welcomed

By MARIAN McDOWELL
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — How much federal assistance can the average Missouri farmer expect this year from federal loans being processed by the Farmers Home Administration (FHA)? Not much say some state agricultural officials.

While emergency farm loans have received much publicity from the media and state officials, less than 10 per cent of Missouri farmers are expected to use them.

"I doubt the low-interest federal loans will help the average farmer very much," C. R. Johnston, president of Missouri Farm Bureau Federation, said.

Many drought-stricken farmers say that eligibility requirements for the low-interest loans are too restrictive and help only a few.

Gene Cunningham of Columbia, chairman of the state Agricultural Disaster Committee, said other federal assistance programs are not so restrictive and have been geared to help all farmers suffering losses. These programs place no financial limitations on the farmer, and assistance is based on the need of the farm.

Federal assistance programs of this type include federal relief payments to farmers with substantial reductions in feed grain, wheat and cotton due to circumstances beyond their control, federal assistance for the transportation of hay to drought-stricken areas and an emergency feed program for livestock farmers.

Federal relief payments in 1974 totalled $31.9 million, but this figure dropped to $14.2 million in 1975. The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Commissions make the payments based on the historical production of the farm.

Oats are the only available grain in the emergency feed program, and because the amount is small the program is not expected to operate past Oct. 31.

FHA loans, which have been a public issue for both gubernatorial candidates Gov. Christopher S. Bond and Joseph P. Teasdale will probably be available to only a fraction of Missouri farmers.

Department of Agriculture statistics show crop losses in 1974 close to $500 million. In the same year, FHA made 5,203 loans totalling $76.8 million.

The 1975 drought was not as severe, however, and reported crop losses totalled $250 million. FHA made loans to 1,472 farmers amounting to $46.2 million in federal assistance.

State Agricultural Director James Boillot explained that most farmers will not qualify for the low-interest loans because "they can still secure commercial credit."

The "test of credit" provision requires the farmer to prove he cannot get credit from any other source. County FHA supervisors across the state agree most farm loans are being handled by private lenders in the local area.

Many farmers seek out the FHA loans because interest is figured at five per cent whereas interest rates with private lenders currently are around nine per cent.

Cunningham would like to see no test of credit. "This requirement has been in at times and left out at times. I think there is a trend in Congress not to spend money as readily. the FHA loans will be a great deal of help to those who qualify, but a substantial per cent of the farmers are not eligible."

On the other side of the coin, John Harvey, acting state director of the FHA office in Columbia, believes the test of credit is necessary.

"I think it is important to understand the philosophy behind FHA. FHA is a supplemental source of credit, and does not want to compete with private lenders. The test of credit is in line with our objectives because FHA loans are intended to help those farmers who really need help and can't get money or credit from any other source," Harvey said.

Ron Alexander, area agronomist for the Richmond Farm Bureau, said it is too difficult to qualify for the loans.

"These loans aren't much help. If a farmer can't get a nine per cent loan from the bank, he is usually in a sell-out situation," Alexander said.

The test of credit requirement, added by Congress to the 1975 federal disaster aid program, will apply also to the 1976 farm loans.

This restriction was added to the FHA loan program after 1974. Some county FHA supervisors think the test of credit resulted from abuses which occurred that year. Others say the test of credit was left out of the 1974 program to stimulate the economy by reaching more farmers.

Harvey acknowledged that any time a federal program of this size is administered, the possibility of some abuse exists.

Several county FHA officers across the state say there are too many headaches in determining eligibility for emergency loans.

Don Wemhoff, FHA supervisor in Audrain County, said the five year production history is not needed in a disaster situation like this.

The required production history must include the farmer's production costs and crop yields for the past five years. The farmer also must list the number of acres and the average yield per acre.

Under the 1974 loan program, farmers were required to provide a three-year history of production costs and crop yields.

"I'd say 99 out of 100 farmers can't tell you their production cost and crop yields for the last five years. So how do you pinpoint it? If we just looked at the farmer's financial statement and talked to his banker, we would have a good indication," Wemhoff said.

Harvey said the five year production average may not be the best approach, but FHA must administer the program as it was passed by Congress.

"Because Missouri is in such a disastrous situation, the possibility of modification in the form of amended legislation is not totally out.

Economic index drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government index designed to anticipate future economic trends fell during August for the first time since the current recovery began, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said its composite index of leading indicators fell 1.5 per cent in August, due primarily to a higher layoff rate in manufacturing and reduced business spending.

The drop is the first since February, 1975, and the largest since the 3.4 per cent decline a month before that.

A decline in the index is generally a signal of slower growth in the economy. The initial report is subject to substantial revision, so that the initial figures are not necessarily solid. Most economists consider a three-month drop or increase in the index to be necessary before they consider a change in direction for the economy is indicated.

But the index drop does come after three consecutive months of a rising unemployment rate despite growing employment and in the midst of what administration economists consider a lull in economic growth.

Administration economists have been contending that the lull is only temporary.

The August decline follows a five-tenths of 1 per cent advance in July and leaves the index, which is at 108 per cent of its 1967 average, precisely where it was in May.

The leading indicator index is composed of a dozen individual economic statistics selected for their position in the forefront of economic trends. Of the 11 statistics available in time for computation in the August index, eight pointed downward.

The layoff rate in manufacturing jumped to 1.5 per cent in August after registering a 1.1 per cent rate in July. The volume of contracts and orders for factories and facilities slipped 12.5 per cent after marking a 1.8 per cent advance the previous month.

Other factors contributing to the August decline were a shorter average work week for factory workers, a slower growth in assets held by consumers and business, a slower formation of new businesses, lower stock prices, a smaller amount of money in circulation after adjustment for inflation and a smaller volume of new orders received by manufacturers of consumer products and their suppliers.

SeMo State enrollment hits record of 8,087

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Showing gains in nearly every category, Southeast Missouri State University's official on-campus fall enrollment is a record 8,087 an increase of 151 students over a year ago, reports Registrar Alton Bray.

In a related matter, Housing Director Shelton "Butch" Smith reported that the university's residence halls are more than 100 per cent occupied. Occupancy in auxiliary housing, which includes some rooms at the Town House Motel and the Foster House apartment building which the university leased for the fall semester, is slightly below 100 per cent, Smith said.

Both Bray and Smith addressed the university's board of regents.

Smith said that 17 of the 38 apartments in the Fountain Plaza, an apartment building which Southeast Missouri State leased this summer to provide married student housing, are occupied.

Expressing optimism that the building would be full for the second semester, he noted it was good that the demand for the married student apartments was not any greater for this semester, since some of the items needed to furnish the units had not arrived by the start of school. He also noted that the university had experienced some electrical and plumbing problems in the building.

The housing director said he expects to be able to house all single students on the campus for the spring semester, and there should be no need to continue the Town House Motel and Foster House leases.

In his report, Bray said, "We are probably at about capacity in our enrollment. There were probably 200 students who did not show up this fall because we couldn't house them."

The registrar added that 215 students who were on hand when school began have now dropped out. They are not reflected in the enrollment total, he said.

This fall's student body includes 1,829 first-time freshmen and a total freshman class of 3,008. There are 1,640 sophomores in the student body, 1,292 juniors, 1,477 seniors and 670 graduate students.

Only in the junior and graduate student categories are the figures lower than last year.

Females outnumber males in the student body, 4,169 to 3,918. Single students outnumber married students, 6,667 to 1,420.

Who Can Afford To Spend $7,000,000 On Waterfowl Habitat In This Recession?

.....We're Ducks Unlimited.....

We Can't Afford Not To!

Your local Ducks Unlimited Committee has joined over 750 others nationwide in a vital conservation effort. Since its foundation in 1937, Ducks Unlimited has grown to over 170,000 members in four countries, on two continents, with but one goal, preservation of waterfowl in North America. This year through the local fund-raising dinners put on by committees like the one in your area, Ducks Unlimited hopes to raise 10 million for wetland habitat development, bringing to a total of $58,000,000 the sum spent on saving these vital watery habitats, habitats that support over 300 species of birds, fish and mammals . . . some on the Federal Government's Endangered Species List.

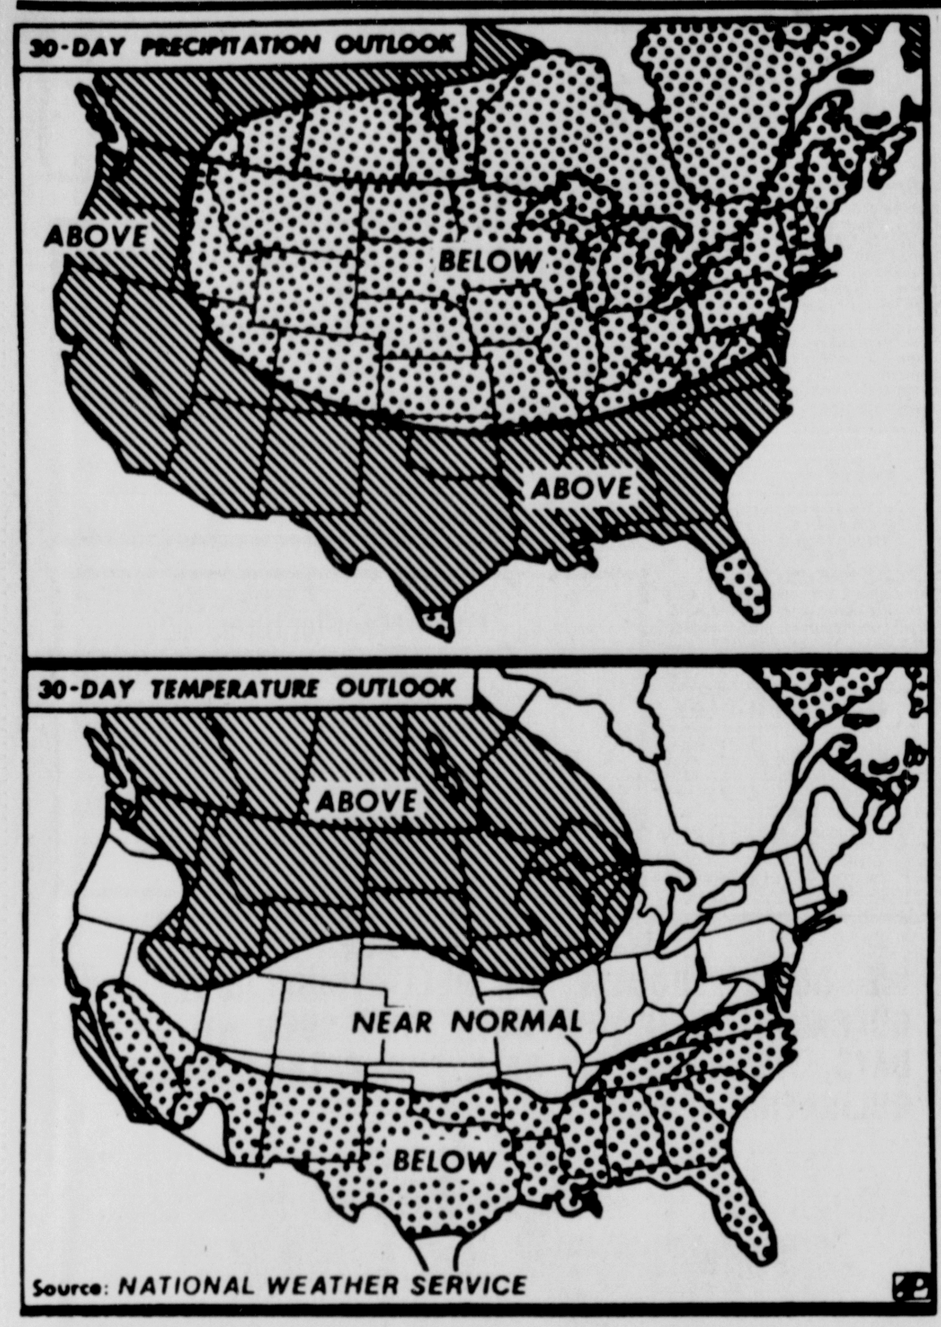

Habitat is the key to wildlife preservation. In the face of expanded agricultural development, draining, filling, and the other manmade hazards facing our waterfowl, we must put forth our greatest efforts now if they are to ever have sufficient habitat in the future. You can help and have a good time doing it. Attend the DU dinner in your area . . . as far as the waterfowl are concerned, YOU CAN'T AFFORD NOT TO!

Charleston girl enters competition in talent show at Mid-South Fair

CHARLESTON— Lucianne Goodin, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lee Goodin, returned to the Mid-South Fair in Memphis, Tenn. Wednesday to compete in the semifinals of the talent show after being selected as one of the five acts and two alternates from the first elimination round held Friday.

The talented young ventriloquist and her friend, Mickey, were selected to perform at the fair after she was awarded second place in the junior division of the local Kiwanis Club talent show in August.

The Mid-South Fair, which hosts the largest youth talent contest of its kind in the world, has attracted 16,000 persons during preliminary contests in seven states this year.

Sponsored by the Memphis Press-Scimitar and WREG-TV , the winner, to be selected tonight during finals at Mid-South Coliseum, will be awarded $500 in cash, an opportunity to appear next summer at Libertyland in Memphis and an audition with CBS Television.

Miss Goodin began her training in ventriloquism three years ago when she received instruction from Beverly Massegee, an evangelist who also presented Lucianne her first "dummy", Mickey.

Lucianne has another friend she has dubbed Mouse — an identical twin of Mickey. She has developed a second voice for Mouse and performs equally as well with both in songs and skits.

Prior to entering the local talent contest, Lucianne and her "friends" have entertained chiildren in the younger grades at schools, appeared on a telethon and were selected by judges last week to perform at Libertyland following her first elimination round.

Givens is named semifinalist for scholarship

Michael W. Givens

EAST PRAIRIE— Michael W. Givens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Givens of East Prairie, has been named a semifinalist in the 1977 National Merit Scholarship Program. Nationally, this honor comes to about 15,000 seniors throughout the 50 states. Over a million students from 17,000 high schools entered the 1977 Merit Program while they were juniors.

The semifinalists are the highest scoring students from each state who took the preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. These academically talented students will have an opportunity to continue in the competition for about 3,850 merit scholarships to be awarded in the spring of 1977. These scholarships will include 2,850 for four years and the remainder will receive $1,000 for one year.

To become a finalist, Givens will be recommended for scholarship consideration by his school, where he has a straight 4.0-point average -- meaning that he has never received a grade below A -- and he must confirm the high score by taking a second examination, the SAT.

On the preliminary test he made a score which ranked him in th upper 50 per cent of the 99th percentile. About 90 per cent of the original number will become eligible for the second examination. Each finalist will receive a certificate of merit next February.

Harris' are indicted for the kidnaping of Patricia Hearst

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — William and Emily Harris, underground companions of Patricia Hearst, have been indicted for the kidnaping of the newspaper heiress 2½ years ago.

Shortly before the Alameda County Grand Jury returned the indictment Wednesday, Miss Hearst's attorneys filed a motion for a new trial on the armed bank robbery for which she has been sentenced to seven years in prison.

The indictment accuses the two avowed members of the Symbionese Liberation Army of kidnaping for ransom with bodily harm in the Feb. 4, 1974, abduction of Miss Hearst from her Berkeley apartment. The maximum penalty would be life in prison without possibility of parole.

Bail for the Harrises was set at $300,000 each, with arraignment set for Friday in Alameda County Superior Court.

The indictment supercedes a criminal complaint filed by the district attorney against the couple for which a preliminary hearing had been scheduled Oct. 7 in Berkeley Municipal Court.

The indictment — 13 counts against each defendant — includes charges of robbery and assault likely to produce great bodily harm against Steven Weed, with whom Miss Hearst shared the apartment from which she was kidnaped.

Weed, who has not seen his former fiance since the abduction, was seriously beaten at the time.

On the light side of things

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — State officials say that a shopper bought a frozen chicken at a Tallahassee supermarket last week — and found the butt of a marijuana cigarette packed with the giblets.

Jane Robinson, director of the state's Consumer Services Division, said Monday that Leon County sheriff's deputies confirmed that the butt was part of a contraband cigarette and turned the evidence over to the Food and Drug Administration.

Mrs. Robinson said the federal agency handled the case because the chicken, which the supermarket replaced for the shopper, had been shipped in from outside the state.

"Herbert Hoover used to promise a chicken in every pot," she said. "Now we're getting pot in chicken."
